Dear Students,

Welcome to this exciting journey of learning English as a second language! This textbook has been carefully designed to help you build a strong foundation in English at the A2 level. Whether you are studying English for travel, work or personal growth, this book will guide you step by step to improve your skills and gain confidence in using the language.

At the A2 level you will continue to expand your vocabulary, practice essential grammar and learn how to express yourself in everyday situations. Each chapter is full of engaging activities, practical examples and real-life dialogues to make learning enjoyable and relevant to your daily life.

Remember, learning a language is more than memorising words and rules. It's about exploring a new way of thinking, connecting with people from different cultures and opening doors to new opportunities. Don't be afraid to make mistakes—they are an essential part of the learning process!

We encourage you to actively participate in all activities, ask questions and practice as much as possible. With dedication and perseverance, you will see your English skills improve and your confidence grow.

We are delighted to have you on this journey and hope this textbook becomes a helpful companion in achieving your goals.

Good luck! Enjoy the process!

Warm regards,
The Authors

EXPLORING MY WORLD

Lesson

Me and My World

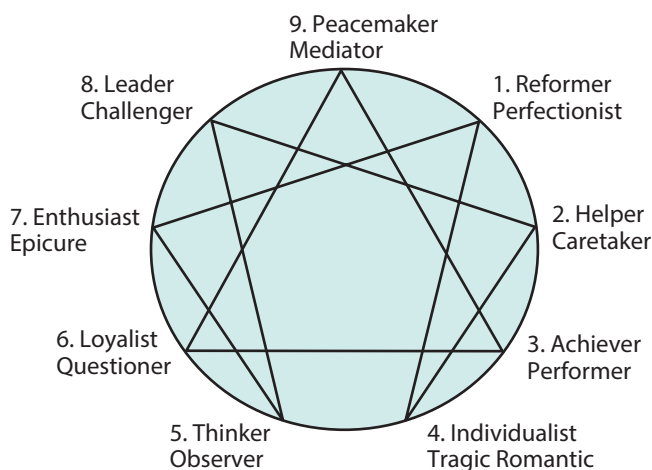

LEAD-IN

1 What makes you feel, think and act the way you do?

a. Read the statements below. Choose the one that best describes you.

1. I am a perfectionist and strive to do things the right way.
2. I want to be loved and appreciated; I care about my relationships with others.
3. I am success-oriented and enjoy achieving my goals.
4. I feel unique and special; I focus on my emotions and creativity.
5. I love learning and understanding the world around me; I prefer deep analysis.
6. I seek security and stability; I am loyal and cautious.
7. I am optimistic and always look for new enjoyable experiences.
8. I am strong, direct and like to have control over situations.
9. I desire harmony and avoid conflicts; I try to bring peace around me.

The Enneagram

The Geometric Symbol of the Enneagram Personalities

b. Find the corresponding number on the Enneagram chart. This number represents your personality type.

2 Discuss with your classmates. Identify the most common personality types in the class.

READING

1 Read about nine personality types. For questions 1–11, choose from the personality types (A–I). You may select a personality type more than once.

Which personality type(s)

1. would not like working as part of a group?
2. is not easily satisfied with himself/herself?
3. is never indecisive?
4. is interested in exploring his/her own feelings?
5. has a positive quality that can sometimes be annoying?
6. is most concerned about the impression made on others?
7. is easy to get along with?
8. is caring and compassionate?
9. can be relied on?
10. might be different from the impression they initially give?
11. values friendships?

A. The Perfectionist

The Perfectionist needs to be right all the time and likes things to be done perfectly. As critical as you are of others, you are even more critical of yourself. You often feel angry, yet you usually manage to turn your anger into positive action and you are known for your hard work and discipline. You value fairness and truth and you are ready to fight for them if necessary.

B. The Helper

Helpers enjoy giving and receiving love. You know how to make others feel special. You place a high value on human relationships and are often attracted by people in trouble because you are most in need of care and support. However, make sure that you only offer help to those that really want it. Sometimes people perceive your help as interference.

C. The Achiever

The Achiever considers good looks and success to be the most important things in life. You are often portrayed as confident and ambitious. You may feel very insecure inside because you rely on the approval of those around you. You have the potential to be a leader, but you are a follower at heart. In spite of your great energy and ambition, caring too much about what people think of you often holds you back.

D. The Romantic

Romantics are original, creative and sensitive. You want to understand yourself, so you tend to examine your emotions in depth, which makes you more self-aware than most people. You are able to show great kindness and understanding to others because of your sensitivity. However, this quality also means that you sometimes take life too seriously. The Romantic is also referred to as the Artist because of his creativity and need for self-expression.

E. The Thinker

The Thinker's aim in life is to observe, investigate and understand the world. You are independent and prefer to work alone. Being different isn't a problem for you, which is just as well as some people consider you to be, a bit strange or weird. Some of the world's greatest brains have been "thinker" personalities, people whose ideas have shocked the world and changed the way we see things.

F. The Loyalist

The Loyalist wouldn't dream of letting a friend down and you take it to heart if you are let down by someone you trust. Having people around you is something you enjoy as long as they are as trustworthy as you are. You have difficulty making decisions alone. For this reason, you like being part of a group. You believe there is safety in numbers and you are the happiest when you feel safe and secure.

G. The Adventurer

Constant activity is what makes you, the Adventurer, feel good. You enjoy exciting new experiences that get your adrenaline flowing and you excel at quickly overcoming obstacles. You know how to live life to the full and your life can get impossibly busy, but your endless enthusiasm can drive people crazy at times.

H. The Leader

Leaders say exactly what they think and make quick decisions. You don't like to be controlled by anyone and you use your personality to gain power over others. Despite your tough image, you can be generous and protective towards people you care about. This is a secret you don't easily reveal.

I. The Peacemaker

The Peacemaker is patient. You have the ability to "go with the flow" and adapt to any situation. Sometimes, however, your readiness to listen and to agree with others makes you forget your own wishes. Arguing is difficult for you because you always understand the other person's point of view. You struggle to initiate new activities, but once you begin, you can't stop.

2 Rewrite the sentences using expressions from the text. Make any necessary changes.

Example: Christine could be an excellent student. → She has the potential to become an excellent student.

- There are lots of phone calls which stop me from getting on with my work. (paragraph C)
- I am very serious about my studies. (paragraph D)
- My computer keeps crashing and it is really annoying me. (paragraph G)
- You can adapt to any situation. (paragraph I)
- Mark finds it difficult to make new friends. (paragraph I)

3 Pick at least two positive and two negative traits that describe you. Explain your choice. Use them in your own sentences.

Self-confident	Caring
Ambitious	Creative
Insecure	Sensitive
Critical	Trustworthy
Inflexible	Patient
Self-aware	Independent

Example:

- I'm self-confident, so I believe in my ability to handle challenges.
- I'm also creative and I enjoy finding new ways to solve problems.
- However, I can be a little critical, especially when things don't go as planned.
- Sometimes I'm also inflexible because I prefer to follow a clear structure.

4 Fill in the chart on the right with nouns and adjectives.

5 Complete the sentences using the words in Exercise 4.

Together in Harmony

LEAD-IN

- 1 Which years fall under the teenage years category?
- 2 What types of relationships do young people have? How do these relationships contribute to their personal development?
- 3 Discover the following factors that influence adolescent relationship development: peer pressure, sociocultural factors, family and relationship development. Which of these factors are you mostly influenced by?
- 4 List the qualities you bring to a peer relationship. Discuss with a partner your answers by following these steps:
 - ✓ write down the qualities you have that a peer would value;
 - ✓ write down the qualities you look for in a peer when forming a relationship;
 - ✓ write down the qualities you would prefer to avoid in a peer.

LISTENING

- 1 Listen to Bryan Leopold's interview where he explains what respect is and why it's important during adolescence. While listening, pay attention to the following tips and fill in the table below.

The definition of respect	Steps to show respect	How to deal with disrespect from others
...	...	...

- 2 Think of a situation from your daily life where you experienced disrespect from others. Which of the strategies mentioned in the recording would work best for you to handle disrespect? Provide examples.
- 3 Listen again. Match the halves of the sentences.

1. Respect creates 2. Respect is a way of showing 3. Listen, 4. In a relationship, it's important to think about 5. By showing respect for others,	A. even if you don't agree with what the person is saying. B. other people's needs and feelings. C. a sense of trust and cooperation. D. we can create a more harmonious and positive social environment. E. courtesy and consideration for others.
--	---
- 4 Do you agree with Bryan Leopold's point of view that "respect is a two-way street"? Justify.
- 5 Work in groups. Read the acrostic and explain it. Then, create a new acrostic that defines the concept of respect. Share your acrostic with the class.

Recognize the value in others
Empathise with their feelings
Show kindness and understanding
Practice active listening
Encourage open communication
Consider different perspectives
Treat everyone with fairness and dignity

READING

- 1 Read the poems. With a partner, find similar ideas. Share them with others.

Respect

Respect is a lesson that everyone should learn
Respect must be given before an expected return
Respect is something that's given for free
Respect is about us and never about me.

Respect is the basis on which relationships are founded
Respect is the anchor that keeps a person well grounded
Respect builds character and defines who we are Respect sets the standard and raises the bar.

Respect is magnanimous and helps to fulfil Respect is the partner that sits with good will Respect is like honey, so sweet it's perceived
Respect – a taste to savor for when it's received.
(By Don Wilson)

Respect Is

Respect is consideration for others
Remember, we are all sisters and brothers.
Respect is putting others ahead of ourselves
Thinking less of me and myself.

Respect is being polite
In our speaking and what we write.
Respect is showing manners that are good
And loving others in our neighbourhood.

Respect is compassion for all
Whether they are rich or poor, big or small,
Respect is kindness that is shown
Doing it happily, without a groan.

Respect is demonstrating dignity for those
Even for those that might impose
Respect is being courteous too
It is how you live and what you do.
(By Catherine Pulsifer)

- 2 Match the words in the Vocabulary Corner box with their definitions.

- a feeling of deep admiration for someone or something elicited by their abilities, qualities or achievements
- mental powers manifested as wishing, choosing, desiring or intending
- to taste or smell with pleasure
- to do something as promised or intended or to satisfy your hopes or expectations
- in a forward direction or position; in front
- a place or region near, vicinity
- a deep, long sound showing great pain or unhappiness

 - c. In the park or playground: One child throws garbage on the ground—show how to respectfully encourage keeping the earth clean.
 - d. On public transport: Offer your chair to an adult or someone in need.
 - e. In a public place: Open the door for others to let them go through first.
- 4 With a partner, match the halves of proverbs and quotes about respect. Choose one of them to comment on.

1. No relationship can be healthy	A. without respect.
2. Respect and courtesy	B. the rest will follow.
3. Respect costs you nothing,	C. but the payoffs are huge.
4. Respect is like a boomerang	D. that comes back to you.
5. Start with respect,	E. go hand-in-hand.
- 5 Play the game The Respect Circle. Stand in a circle and take turns saying something respectful about the person to your left. When you finish, share your feelings.
- 6 In groups, discuss the relationship between respect and leadership.
 - a. Analyse how leaders in different fields (e.g., sports, politics, community, family, school) earn respect.
 - b. Identify the qualities of a respectful leader. Explain how you can use these qualities in your everyday life. Give examples of famous leaders who have earned respect in different ways.
- 7 In groups, discuss how respect can improve group relationships. Make a list of "Respect Guidelines" for your classroom, team or community. Share your guidelines and discuss how they can help build a respectful environment. Explain your choices.

 - d. There is one perfect job for me. I need to keep searching.
 - e. No one will hire me because I lack experience, have low grades, have gaps in my work history.
- 4 Read the information in the box to learn what "vocation" means. In pairs, discuss how someone can discover their vocation. Think of real-life examples and share your ideas with the class.

The word vocation comes from the Latin "vocare" which means to follow the voice of God or to do what we are called to do. Your career can be an excellent way to live a vocation you are passionate about. For example, if you feel a calling to guide, teach and mentor others, you might choose a career in education. Similarly, if you feel a calling to help the ill or elderly, your vocation might be in health care or social work, and you could become a nurse, doctor, or counsellor.

Unique Paths to a Thriving Career

In a world where traditional career paths are often celebrated, it is essential to recognise and celebrate the unique paths individuals take to achieve success. Throughout history, we have seen remarkable individuals who have paved their own way and achieved greatness through their unconventional journeys. Their stories serve as an inspiration for all of us, showing that success is not limited to a one-size-fits-all approach.

Passion is a driving force that can push individuals to extraordinary heights. Look at Olympic gold medallist Michael Phelps, who discovered his love for swimming at a young age. Through his constant dedication and commitment he won 23 Olympic gold medals, leaving a legacy that will be remembered for generations. Phelps' journey teaches us that when passion fuels our pursuits, success becomes more than just a destination, it becomes a way of life.

Life rarely follows a linear trajectory and setbacks are inevitable. However, one can achieve success through adaptation and perseverance. J.K. Rowling, the renowned author of the Harry Potter series, faced numerous rejections and financial struggles before achieving success. Her story is a testament to the power of reinvention and the importance of never giving up on our dreams. Rowling's resilience and determination ultimately led her to become one of the most successful authors in history.

Success is not limited to traditional career paths but can also be found in pursuing unconventional passions. For example, Jamie Oliver, a British celebrity chef, who started his career as a kitchen porter, became a renowned advocate for healthy eating and a successful entrepreneur. Oliver's story proves the importance of

- Embracing Unconventional Careers
- The Power of Passion
- Embracing Failure
- Reinvention and Persistence
- Creating Personal Definitions of Success

following our interests and embracing unconventional careers. When we have a genuine passion for something, it can lead us down unexpected paths and open doors we never imagined. Oliver's journey teaches us that success is not limited to a predefined set of career options but can be found in pursuing what truly inspires and motivates us.

While many perceive failure as a setback, successful individuals recognise it as an essential component of their journey. Oprah Winfrey, one of the most influential media personalities in the world, faced numerous challenges and setbacks throughout her career. However, she never allowed failure to define her. Instead, she used it as a stepping stone to learn, grow and ultimately achieve enormous success. Winfrey's story reminds us that failure should not discourage us but should be viewed as an opportunity for growth and self-improvement.

Society often defines success based on external factors such as wealth, fame or job titles. However, truly successful individuals understand that success is a personal journey and can have different meanings for each individual. Shonda Rhimes, the creator of hit TV shows like Grey's Anatomy and Scandal, once said, "Success is not about making a lot of money. It's about making a difference." Rhimes' perspective reminds us that success is not solely measured by societal standards, but by the impact we have on others' lives and the fulfilment we find in our work.

The stories of these remarkable individuals remind us that success is not limited to a specific path or formula. It is a personal and unique journey that can be achieved through determination, passion and resilience.

2 Scan the blog. Match the headings in the box with the paragraphs.

Reading Working out Writing
Resting Playing a sport Taking up a hobby
Learning a language Socialising and networking

3 Read the blog below, which suggests eight productive ways to spend your free time. Which of these activities do you already practice, and which would you like to start? Why?

We really don't have much time on our hands. When you find yourself with free time, you should make the most of it. Here are eight ways to spend your time productively.

A Reading offers numerous advantages and benefits, especially for young people. It not only stimulates the mind and reduces stress, but also exposes you to the best thoughts, ideas and stories from all of history around the world. It makes you smarter by improving your vocabulary, writing skills and creativity. Getting lost in a good book is a great escape from the troubles and worries of everyday life, while reading a self-help book can help you grow both professionally and personally. Research has shown that reading improves your concentration and memory retention. It's one of the best ways to spend your time.

B Writing has an even greater impact on an individual's communication skills than reading. It improves your ability to communicate with others and provides clarity in your thoughts as well as your use of words. One of the best practices for mindfulness and mental health is journaling, while prose, poetry and lyricism nurture creativity.

C Everything you do is done at your own leisure. While learning a new language is not as easy as it sounds, the Internet really helps. With the necessary help from YouTube and language-learning apps such as Duolingo, the world of languages is up for grabs. By dedicating just half an hour a day you can explore an entire culture through the lens of its language.

D In a world where we're so cramped for time, it is almost impossible to understand what you must do when you have a few moments to yourself. One solution to this would be to take up a hobby. Whether it's music, painting, knitting, watching movies or playing a sport, hobbies are a wonderful way to enhance your skills, intellect, personality and potential. Doing what you love can be a great boost for your mental health. Moreover, pursuing a hobby can lead to lasting friendships.

E Leading a sedentary lifestyle poses serious physical and mental risks, so it is extremely important to engage in some form of physical activity daily, whether it is a short walk, yoga or intense cardio. A more elegant solution would be to go on a ten-minute run in the morning and a ten-minute walk after dinner. Planks and pushups are effective core workouts that you can easily do at home.

F If working out isn't your thing, why not try another one? Playing a sport occasionally is a great way to stay connected to your body. Most sports involve more people, so it can also be a way to meet others and make new friends. Engaging in a sport makes staying physically active and mentally healthy enjoyable and effortless.

G Human beings are inherently social creatures. Socialising and networking are important parts of our lives. It might be a good idea to go out with a few friends for an evening at least once every couple of weeks. This can improve how you function and leave you in a better mood.

H In today's fast-paced world, we are literally at our desks all the time. Our bodies and minds are often exhausted from long hours of work. It's important to give them the time they need to relax and reset. Rest is vital for better physical and mental health, improved moods and healthier immune systems.

6 Work in small groups. Make up questions based on the text. Choose a group and ask them your questions. Then, take turns.

SPEAKING

1 Choose one of the following situations and role-play it.

You and your friend have decided not to go bungee jumping. Tell him or her that you prefer more traditional sports. Explain your feelings about the type of sport you enjoy and encourage him or her to try another activity.

You love extreme sports. You've recently taken part in activities such as paragliding and white-water canoeing. You've decided to go bungee jumping and want your friend to join you. However, he or she refuses to participate in this activity. Try to convince your friend to come with you.

You love sport and are very active. You work out at the gym five days a week and go running every day. Recently, your friend introduced you to someone who doesn't practice any sport at all. In fact, this person dislikes all physical activity and considers it a complete waste of time. Have a conversation with this person. Ask about the reasons for thinking this way and try to present intelligent and convincing arguments to support your belief in the value and benefits of sport.

2 Reflect on this technique. Apply the PARS cycle (Plan, Act, Reflect, Study) to the activities you currently do in your free time. Share your experience with your classmates.

Plan: Decide what you're doing, who you're doing it with, and when. It's your blueprint for enjoyment.

Act: The main event. Jump in and enjoy your plans. This is what leisure is all about.

Reflect: Think it over. Was it enjoyable? Right people? Right time? Note what could be better.

Study: Use your reflections to figure out how to level up your next leisure experience. Look into new ideas that will make it even better.

Most of us spend a significant portion of our leisure time spontaneously, with little planning or reflection. This often leads to a feeling that these precious moments could have been better spent. Are you familiar with the PARS technique? By adopting a simple yet effective cycle of Plan, Act, Reflect, and Study (PARS), you can continuously improve the amount of satisfaction you gain from your leisure time. Using the PARS Cycle can help you make the most of your free time and even increase it.

Future Continuous Tense

The Future Continuous Tense, also known as the Future Progressive Tense, is a verb tense that shows an ongoing action in the future.

Structure: will be + V(-ing)

Future Continuous: I will be watching my shows from lunch until dinner.

It is helpful to use the future continuous tense when describing:

✓ multiple actions happening in the future:

e.g. I'll be playing basketball on Sunday, and my partner will be playing tennis.

✓ planned or confirmed future events taking place at a specific time:

e.g. The museum will be hosting a special tour at 8 p.m.

✓ a future action interrupted by another action:

e.g. When the clock strikes midnight, we will be celebrating the New Year.

✓ possible situations in the future:

e.g. Everyone will be cheering for me at the game tomorrow.

1 Use the future continuous form of the verbs in brackets.

- Peggy ... to the party on Saturday. (to come)
- We ... him at 6 p.m. tomorrow. (to meet)
- This time next week he ... to South Africa. (to fly)
- At 6 o'clock on Friday they ... the new song. (to sing)
- It ... probably ... when I reach London. (to rain)
- Tomorrow at nine I ... a test. (to write)
- Andy ... a video when I arrive tonight. (to watch)
- You ... pizza soon. (to eat)
- She ... when you telephone her. (to sleep)
- They ... to Budapest at this time tomorrow. (to travel)

2 Complete the sentences using the future continuous negative or interrogative form of the verbs in brackets.

- They ... all night. (to dance)
- We are late, he ... for us anymore. (to wait)
- She ... until midnight. (to study)
- With your bad work ethic, you probably ... for this company anymore next year. (to work)
- What ... tomorrow evening? (you, to do)
- How many people ... in the contest? (to participate)
- ... the piano at the performance? (Jane, to play)
- Who ... with the press release? (to deal)
- Where ... when you're in Dublin? (you, to stay)

WRITING

1 Look at the photos. Compare them. Answer the questions below.

- Why were British people unhealthy a hundred years ago?
- Why are some people unhealthy today?

2 Read the text and check your answers.

Food for Thought

At the beginning of the twentieth century, many impoverished families in Britain experienced food insecurity. They did a lot of physical work, but they only had meat once or twice a week. The basic British diet was not healthy. People had bread and tea and there were potatoes every day. Fresh fruit was only available during the summer. Oranges and bananas were luxuries. There were no kiwis or avocados. Due to their diet, a lot of people died young. They were small. The average height for men was only 1.5 meters.

A hundred years later, we have very different problems. In Britain, there is a lot of food and people tend to live longer. But many of us eat the wrong food. Our diet consists primarily of crisps, sweets, hamburgers, pizzas and fizzy drinks such as cola. We also consume a lot of meat and dairy products; on average, we drink two litres of milk and eat two eggs a week. But we still do not eat enough fruit or vegetables.

Moreover, people in Britain are more likely to eat fast food than go out to eat in a posh restaurant. A hamburger and French fries are the most popular fast-food meals in Britain, but not all fast food is American. Kebab houses, often run by Greek or Turkish immigrants, are also widespread.

People spend less time cooking now. A growing number of people eat convenience food in the evenings. Convenience meals are already cooked; all you have to do is heat them up in the microwave.

3 Read the statements. Determine whether they are true, false or not mentioned in the text. Correct the false statements.

- In the past, people didn't have a healthy diet.
- They used to eat a lot of fruit.
- Now most people in Britain eat healthily.
- Milk and dairy products are bad for people's health.
- Kebabs don't come from Britain.

4 Match the words and word combinations in the Vocabulary Corner box with their definitions below. Write sentences using them.

- expensive and of high quality;
- food of reduced quality, variety, or desirability of diet;
- food that is almost ready to eat when it is bought and can be prepared quickly and easily;
- existing or happening in many places or among many people;
- very poor;
- usually, typically; as a rule.

7 Read the following clues. Guess what food or dish is being described.

- This food is soft and tastes sweet. It is made from cream, sugar and fruit or chocolate. It is eaten very cold, usually in summer.
- This food is crunchy and it can be salty or sweet. People often eat it while watching a movie.
- This food is hard on the outside, but usually soft in the middle. It is very versatile and is used to make many sweet and savoury dishes. In the UK, people also eat it on its own for breakfast or in a sandwich.
- This food is usually hard and crunchy with a red or green colour. People often use it to make desserts.

- Have you tried any of these dishes? Which ones? Did you enjoy them or not?
- What is your favourite food? What food do you like the least?
- Do you like trying new foods? Why yes? Why not?
- Are there any foods that you didn't eat as a child but now you enjoy eating?
- Do you prefer food from your own country or from other countries? Has your country adopted many dishes from other cultures?
- If you were living abroad, which food from your country would you miss the most?

Relative Adverbs

Relative adverbs are words that provide more information about the people, places, or things being discussed. The relative adverbs where, when, and why can be used to join sentences or clauses.

That's the restaurant where we met for the first time. (the place)
 That picture was taken in the park where I used to play. (the place)
 I remember the day when we first met. (the time)
 There was a very hot summer the year when he was born. (the time)
 Tell me why you came home late. (the reason)
 Do you want to know why he is angry with Sally? (the reason)

1 Complete the sentences with the relative adverbs why, when or where.

- Do you know the reason ... she is so upset?
- The day ... you saw me, I was feeling sick.
- The library is a place ... you can borrow books.
- That is the house ... we used to live.
- This is the reason ... I never call her.
- The place ... we went yesterday is just around the corner.
- They never told us ... they moved away.
- The school ... I study English is not far from your house.
- Was that the time ... you went to France together?
- That is the drawer ... I keep my T-shirts.

2 Choose the correct relative adverb.

- This is the station (when/where/why) Emily met James.
- July and August are the months (when/where/why) most people go on holiday.
- Do you know (where/when/why) so many people around the world are learning English?
- This is the church (when/where/why) Sue and Peter got married.

- A horror film was the reason (where/when/why) I couldn't sleep last night.
- A greenhouse is a shop (where/when/why) you can buy vegetables.

WRITING

1 Read the report. Fill in the gaps with but or however.

Health Report

Date: 21.09.24

Age of students: 16

I interviewed twenty students in our school about how they take care of their teeth. Here are the results:
 95% of students chew gum regularly. ..., only 25% buy sugar-free chewing gum.
 90% of students clean their teeth twice a day ... only 40% go to the dentist regularly.
 About 75% of students drink a lot of milk. ... 100% of the students drink three or more cans of cola a week.
 About 50% of students drink a lot of water ... only 10% buy sugar-free drinks.

My advice to the class is:

- ✓ Buy sugar-free chewing gum.
- ✓ Go to the dentist every six months.
- ✓ Drink less cola.

2 Do a class health survey. Write a similar report using the following topics: breakfast, drinks, exercise, fruits, vegetables, sports, smoking and sweets. Present your survey results to your classmates.

READING COMPREHENSION

1 Read the text. Complete the tasks that follow.

Chocolate and You

Hard or soft? Almond or coconut? What do you think your favourite chocolate says about you?

Murray Langham, a chocolate therapist, was in Dunedin during the Cadbury Chocolate Carnival to help people learn how their favourite treat is connected to their personality. More than 30 years ago, Mr. Langham, also known as Dr. Chocolate, began his journey into chocolate therapy after observing a group of children struggle to pick one chocolate each before going to bed.

As a practicing therapist, he helped many people with weight issues, and the consumption of chocolate kept coming up. Following some research, he concluded that different chocolates indicated different personality traits. What started as a joke became a serious business for him when he found that “it actually works.”

He published two books on the subject in seven languages and frequently toured America and Europe, conducting workshops and speaking at corporate events. During sessions, he asked people to select four favourite chocolates. Based on the flavour and shape of their choices, he determined aspects of their personality, the “shape pattern of a person”. This allowed them to learn about themselves and change themselves if they wanted to. “Hard caramels” were said to be methodical, so if someone wanted to move away from that behaviour, they could select a coconut chocolate, which would make them more artistic.

Langham says he has learned a lot about his patients’ personalities by observing the kinds of chocolates they choose. For example, he says that people who like white chocolate have a hard time making decisions. Dark chocolate lovers think of the future, while those who prefer milk chocolate tend to live in the past. The shape you choose also says a lot about you. People who are attracted to square chocolates are usually dependable—they don’t like to let others down. Those who prefer round chocolates like to party and live life to the fullest. Do you like oval chocolates? If so, you are probably a creative and adventurous person.

He said that even how the wrapper is treated indicates a part of someone’s personality. If the wrapper is rolled into a ball, the person is said to be bored and in need of excitement. If it is folded, the person is structured.

So, next time you choose a chocolate, think carefully about what secrets you are revealing.

Tim: Hey Sam, how was your weekend?

Sam: Hey Tim! It was pretty good. I spent a lot of time with my family. How about you?

Tim: Nice! Mine was good, too. I with some friends and relaxed. Family time sounds great, though. What did you do?

Sam: We had a big family dinner on Saturday. My parents, siblings and even some cousins came over. It was loud but fun. We played some board games and simply caught up with each other.

Tim: That sounds awesome! I love family dinners, especially when everyone gets together. It's always a bit chaotic, but in a good way.

Sam: Exactly! It's like organised chaos. We always laughing a lot. How's your family doing?

Tim: They're good! My sister just, so there's a lot of excitement around that. We're all looking forward to the wedding planning.

Sam: That's amazing! Congratulations to her! Do you ... well with her fiancé?

Tim: Yeah, he's a great young man. We've known him for a while now, so it feels like he's already part of the family. What about you? How are your siblings?

Sam: They're doing well. My brother just started college and my sister is finishing up high school. It's weird seeing them grow up so fast!

Tim: I know what you mean. Time flies! Do you and your siblings ... well?

Sam: For the most part, yes. We have our moments, but we're pretty close. How about you and your sister?

Tim: Same here. We argue, but we always support each other. Family is like that, I guess. You can't stay upset for too long.

Sam: So true. It's nice having people you can rely on no matter what. Well, it was great ... about our families. It's nice to talk about the good stuff sometimes.

Tim: Absolutely. It's always good to appreciate the people we care about.

Sam: For sure! Have a wonderful rest of your day, Tim.

Tim: You, too, Sam!

READING

1 Read the story and think of another title for it.

Father and Son

A son took his old father to a restaurant for an evening dinner. While eating, his father, who was very old and weak, dropped food on his shirt and trousers.

Other diners watched him in disgust while his son remained calm. After he finished eating, his son, who was not at all embarrassed, quietly took him to the washroom, wiped the food particles, removed the stains, combed his hair and adjusted his spectacles firmly. When they came out, the entire restaurant was watching them in complete silence, not able to grasp how someone could behave like that in public.

The son settled the bill and started walking out with his father. At that time, an old man among the diners called out to the son and asked him, "Don't you think you have left something behind?"

The son replied, "No, sir, I haven't."

The old man answered, "Yes, you have! You left a lesson for every son and hope for every father."

The restaurant went silent.

1 Be creative! Continue the phrase, "People can discover..."

2 Read the text. What did the Thompson family discover?

A Journey of Discovery

In a cosy cabin nestled deep in the woods, the Thompson family embarked on a journey of discovery unlike any other. The Thompsons, consisting of parents David and Emily and their two children, Lucy and Daniel, sought solace in nature to reconnect and strengthen their family bonds.

David, a busy businessman, had often been consumed by his work, leaving little time for his family. Emily, a devoted homemaker, longed for the days when they were all together, sharing laughter and creating memories.

As they settled into their rustic cabin, surrounded by towering trees and the soothing sounds of nature, the Thompsons embarked on a series of outdoor adventures. They hiked through lush forests, picnicked by sparkling streams and stargazed beneath the canopy of the night sky.

With each passing day, the Thompson family grew closer, their shared experiences forging a bond that transcended time and space. Lucy and Daniel, initially sceptical of their parents' plan for a technology-free vacation, soon found themselves captivated by the wonders of the natural world; their curiosity piqued and their spirits lifted by the beauty that surrounded them.

As they sat around the campfire one evening, roasting marshmallows and sharing stories, David and Emily realised the importance of slowing down and savouring the moments they shared with their children. They vowed to make more time for family adventures, knowing that these were the moments that mattered most in life.

As their vacation came to an end, the Thompson family returned home with a newfound sense of closeness and camaraderie. They had discovered that true happiness lay not in material possessions or worldly success but in the simple joys of spending time together as a family.

In the years that followed, the Thompsons continued to prioritise family bonding activities, whether it was camping in the wilderness, exploring new hiking trails, or simply spending quality time together at home. Despite encountering numerous challenges during their journey, they remained confident that their bond with each other would enable them to overcome any obstacles.

Family bonding activities provide opportunities for connection, growth, and shared experiences that strengthen the bonds between loved ones. By prioritising quality time together, families can create lasting memories and forge deeper connections that enrich their lives and bring them closer together.

GRAMMAR

Present Perfect Continuous

The present perfect continuous, also known as the present perfect progressive, is a verb tense that indicates the beginning of an action in the past that continues up to the present. The present perfect continuous usually emphasises duration, or the amount of time that an action has been taking place.

Uses:

1. Duration from the past until now: We use the present perfect continuous to indicate that something started in the past and has continued up until now.

Time indicators: for five minutes, for two weeks, since, etc.

e.g. She has been working at that company for three years.

2. Showing evidence of recent activities

e.g. The grass looks wet. Has it been raining?

Structure:

has/have + been + present participle (V+ing)

Statement: You have been waiting here for two hours.

Question: Have you been waiting here for two hours?

Negative: You have not been waiting here for two hours.

1 Write full sentences using the present perfect continuous, in the positive or negative form.

- (she / work here for five years)
- (they / not / watch TV much recently)
- (you / eat a lot recently)
- (we / live in London for six months)
- (he / play football so he's tired)
- (they / learn English for two years)
- (he / not / play football for five years)
- (she / go to the cinema every weekend for years)
- (it / rain so the pavement is wet)
- (you / sleep for twelve hours)

2 Use the verbs in brackets in the present perfect continuous.

- I ... this website since 1999. (to run)
- My parents ... for years. (to travel)
- He ... for his girlfriend since 6 o'clock. (to wait)
- We ... in Greece since last August. (to live)
- Max and Paul ... their bikes all day. (to ride)
- They ... in the sun for hours. (to lie)
- Emily ... on the computer for too long. (to work)
- It ... since I came home. (to rain)
- You ... to music since 12:30. (to listen)
- Frank ... for the last 20 minutes. (to dream)

Do vs Make – What's the difference?

People often confuse the English verbs "do" and "make". There are, however, some important differences that can help us choose the right verb.

We use do in collocations associated with tasks, duties, obligations, and routine or repetitive activities.

We often use make when we talk about the creation or production of something.

Do usually refers to the action of performing these activities, while make generally refers to the result.

3 Choose the correct variant.

- It makes/does no difference to me if he stays for one day or one month.
- I did/made a promise to meet him whenever I'm in London.
- He'll do/make his best to pass the exam.
- David did/made a reservation for a flight to Dublin.
- Susan makes/does at least half an hour of exercise every week.
- Drink this medicine - it will do/make you good.
- She has several jobs to make/do before going to bed.
- Andrew made/did a profit of €1000 on his car.
- The customer did/made a complaint about the dirt in the food shop.
- I'll make supper if you do/make the dishes.

4 Fill in the correct form of "make" or "do".

- How much money does a waitress ...?
- Could you ... the laundry today? We have no clean clothes.
- She spent the evening watching black and white films and ... her nails.
- Did their new business ... a profit last year?
- The teacher ... some very positive remarks about Susie's work.
- There's so much paperwork to ...! I'll be here all night.
- I'd like to ... Julie an offer of a job. It would be full time in our office.
- This lecture is so boring! Let's ... an escape during the break and go to the café!
- Stop talking and ... some work!
- Alison can't come tonight. She'd already ... plans.

READING

- 1 Read the statement and explain it.

"Food is not rational. Food is culture, habit, craving and identity."
(Jonathan Safran Foer)

2 Read the text. Discover the connections between food and family. Think of a suitable title. Explain your choice.

When I hear the word “food”, I can’t help but think about family!

Food is a central theme in some of my favourite memories of family time.

Sitting around a food-laden table, sharing stories about the food, the recipes, the people whose “specials” those dishes are, and how the dishes were created in “the old days” before modern appliances, is a wonderful way to keep culture and traditions alive.

I love sitting around our Christmas table, sharing stories about past Christmases, the award-winning cake of one aunt, the absolutely terrible culinary creations of another and the efforts of our family members to keep traditions alive. From the pre-Christmas “timetable” scheduling the preparation of 16 varieties of sweets made in our house, to packing these homemade delicacies for friends, family and neighbours. From staying up late after Christmas midnight mass, opening our presents while gorging on traditional cakes, sweets and hot chocolate, along with newer traditions introduced over the years, like my now “world-famous mince pies”, along with those from Harrods brought over by my fancy London sister, to waking up early to knead the dough for our traditional fried bread called “fugias”, to prepping the suckling pig to be sent to the bakery to bake in the huge wood-fired ovens.

Families have gathered for generations to eat together, socialise and celebrate. As we gather, we pass along recipes and food traditions to the next generation. Food connects us and its preparation and consumption can bring together people from different generations.

Food is a big part of our cultural identity; it is also one of the ties that binds us together.

Good food has a way of bringing families together and anytime families gather—even to eat—family history is made. So, whether we realise it or not, our family food traditions are part of our family history.

This is especially true today, in a world that increasingly keeps us away from extended family as we move out of our hometowns for jobs or a better life.

While the food, the preparation, and the celebrations may be different, the fundamental emotions remain the same.

SPEAKING

1 Many families around the world share common traditions. Certain celebrations and holidays give family members the opportunity to come together and do something as a family. Look through the examples of common family traditions from around the world. In pairs, discuss what other family traditions could be added to the list below.

- ✓ Decorating the Christmas tree as a family.
- ✓ Hiding baby teeth under a pillow for the tooth fairy.

2 Family traditions are unique to certain cultures. Read the examples below. Discuss them. Are they similar to the traditions in your country?

- a. Honoring ancestors in Japan. Many Japanese homes have a small family altar, or butsudan, as a sign of respect for elders who have passed away.
- b. Celebrating the first day of school in Germany. On the Einschulung, the first day of grade one, children are given a Schultüte. This is a decorated cardboard cone filled with sweets, school supplies and small books to celebrate the day.

3 In pairs, discuss the unique family traditions from your country and around the world. Explain their significance and describe when and how they are typically practiced.

4 How to keep family traditions? In small groups, discuss the tips below to keep them going year after year. Complete the list with some other tips.

- ✓ Get input from the whole family. Every member should feel as if their voice is being heard and respected.
- ✓ Do something everyone is interested in. Every family member needs to be somewhat invested in the family tradition for it to be sustainable and meaningful.
- ✓ Keep it simple. Overcomplicating a family ritual may detract from its fun aspect and turn it into a stressful affair.
- ✓ Be open to change. You might need to alter family traditions as the years go by in order to preserve their longevity. Be willing to adapt to change.
- ✓ Stay positive. While family comes with an abundance of love and support, it may also come with a number of internal tensions and challenging histories.
- ✓ Take a break from technology. Technology is the ultimate distraction and barrier to connection. While you may be tempted to photograph every moment of a family celebration, try to be present and capture the moment mentally.

GRAMMAR

Past Perfect Continuous Tense

The past perfect continuous is a verb tense that shows that an action that started in the past continued up until another time in the past.

Structure: had been + present participle

e.g. I had been working at the company for five years when I got the promotion.

When, for, since, and before are words that you may use with the past perfect continuous tense.

e.g. Martha had been walking three miles a day before she broke her leg.

e.g. The program that was terminated had been running smoothly since 1945.

1 Write the correct form of the verb in the past perfect continuous tense.

- I ... (work) all day, so I didn't want to go out.
- She ... (sleep) for ten hours when I woke her.
- They ... (live) in Beijing for three years when he lost his job.

- Frank Sinatra caught the flu because he ... (sing) in the rain too long.
- He ... (drive) less than an hour when he ran out of petrol.
- They were very tired in the evening because they ... (help) on the farm all day.
- I ... (not /work) all day; so I wasn't tired and went to the disco at night.
- They ... (cycle) all day so their legs were sore in the evening.

WRITING

Time Transition Words

Transition words, also known as discourse markers, are expressions we use in everyday speech and writing, as well as in more formal contexts like essays, articles, papers, and presentations.

Transition words to begin a sequence

- ✓ To begin with
- ✓ To start
- ✓ First
- ✓ First of all
- ✓ At first
- ✓ Firstly
- ✓ Once
- ✓ In the beginning
- ✓ Let's begin with

Continuing a sequence of events

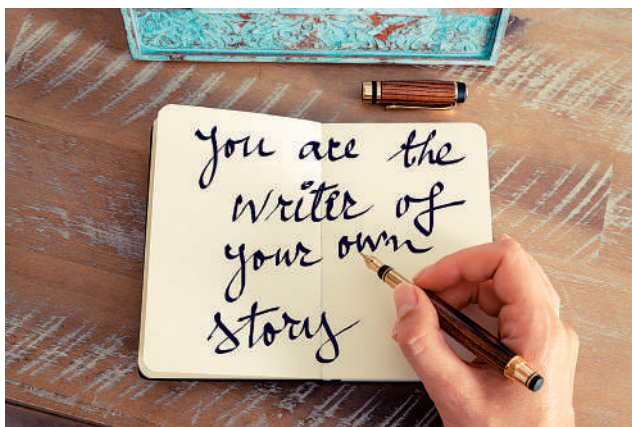

- ✓ Then
- ✓ Next
- ✓ After (this/that)
- ✓ Afterward
- ✓ Until
- ✓ Till
- ✓ Second, third, fourth, etc.
- ✓ Secondly, thirdly, fourthly, etc.

Time order words to end a sequence

- ✓ Finally
- ✓ In the end
- ✓ Last
- ✓ Lastly
- ✓ At last
- ✓ In conclusion
- ✓ In summary
- ✓ At the end

1 In about 120-150 words, write a story describing a special family event that you enjoyed. When writing, include the following: the location, people, food, activities and actions. Use the time transition words from the table above to organise your story clearly.

2 Write the recipe for your favourite family dish and share it with your classmates.

By 2050, the global population may reach a stunning 10 billion.

LEAD-IN

- 1 Look at the pictures. Name the problems that people might face as a result of population growth.
- 2 Read the definition of “sustainable lifestyles”. In pairs, think of examples to explain it.

Sustainable lifestyles are defined as ways of living, social behaviours, and choices that minimise environmental degradation (such as the use of natural resources, CO₂ emissions, waste, and pollution) while supporting equitable socio-economic development and a better quality of life for everyone.

- 3 Read the quotations below. In groups, choose one and explain what it means.

- ✓ “We can sit back, do nothing and watch our planet be destroyed. Or we can take action, become advocates and start making lifestyle choices which are kinder to people and the planet.” (Kira Simpson)
- ✓ “We only get a handful of decades on Earth. I’d rather spend that time doing good than perpetuating bad.” (Tim Silverwood)
- ✓ “Spend some time outdoors exploring where you live. When you love your home, you’ll fight harder to protect it.” (Kira Simpson)

LISTENING

- 1 Listen to a university student's article about sustainable living.

Answer the following questions:

- What does sustainable living mean?
- Which European country is mentioned in the article?
- What percentage of people are conscious of sustainability?
- What recommendations are given for adopting a more sustainable lifestyle?
- What is the purpose of the article?

- 2 Listen to the article again. Complete the sentences using the words below:

- 1 Read the text about the strategies supermarkets can adopt to become more environmentally friendly.
Are there any eco-friendly supermarkets in your local area?

Sustainability in Supermarkets

Sustainability has become an increasingly important issue for both consumers and businesses. Supermarkets are no exception. The supermarket industry has a significant impact on the environment, from the products it sells to the way it operates its stores.

Reducing food waste is one of the most effective ways for supermarkets to become more sustainable. They can implement inventory management systems, donate surplus food and educate customers on how to reduce food waste at home. Additionally, supermarkets can invest in composting and recycling programs to reduce the amount of waste they produce.

Another key way supermarkets can improve sustainability is by reducing their energy and water consumption. This can involve installing energy-efficient lighting and heating systems, investing in renewable energy sources and adopting water-saving practices. Many supermarkets are also exploring the use of green roofs, solar panels and even wind turbines.

Another important aspect of sustainability in supermarkets is the use of eco-friendly packaging materials. Many supermarkets now offer more biodegradable, reusable and recyclable packaging options, such as paper bags, glass jars and biodegradable containers. This not only reduces the environmental impact of packaging, but also aligns with the growing consumer demand for eco-friendly products.

Finally, supermarkets can promote sustainability by offering products that are organic, fair trade and locally sourced. This not only supports sustainable farming practices but also helps to reduce the environmental impact of transportation.

Supermarkets have a significant impact on the environment and they have a responsibility to implement eco-friendly practices to reduce their environmental footprint. By adopting such measures, supermarkets can become more sustainable and meet the growing consumer demand for environmentally friendly products. Additionally, they position themselves as responsible and conscientious businesses, which can attract and retain environmentally aware customers.

- 2 Match the words in the Vocabulary Corner box with the definitions below.

Write sentences using the new words.

- material used for wrapping or covering goods to protect them;
- to fulfil, satisfy, or achieve;
- relating to forms of energy that are produced using the sun, wind, etc;
- the act of collecting and storing plant material so it can be added to soil to improve its quality;
- a need for goods or services that customers want to buy or use;
- able to be used more than once;
- the type and arrangement of lights used in place.

- 3 Fill in the sentences using the words in the Vocabulary Corner box.

- The ... in that restaurant is soft and romantic.
- The ... for fish this month exceeds the supply.
- ... energy will become more important as time goes on.
- ... is the ideal way of getting rid of vegetable, garden and organic waste.
- About 2% of fast-food ... ends up as litter.
- Jane didn't find a house that could ... her needs and requirements.
- I always carry a ... shopping bag.

4 Read the text again and decide if the sentences are true or false. Correct the false ones.

- The supermarket industry has a considerable influence on the environment.
- Increasing food waste is among the most effective strategies for supermarkets to enhance sustainability.
- Supermarkets may also invest in composting and recycling initiatives.
- Reducing energy and water consumption will not promote sustainability.
- The use of eco-friendly packaging materials promotes sustainability.

5 In pairs, discuss other environmentally friendly measures that supermarkets and other shops could adopt. Make a list and share it with other classmates.

SPEAKING

1 In groups, discuss the questions below. Share your ideas with the class.

- What are some everyday habits that contribute to sustainable living?
- Why do you think sustainable living is important for the environment?
- In what ways can individuals promote sustainable living within their communities?
- How can adopting sustainable living practices benefit individuals personally?
- What challenges might individuals face when trying to adopt a more sustainable lifestyle?
- Can you share an example of a sustainable living practice you have adopted in your own life?

2 Read the examples of responsible consumption below. Which of these actions do you practise regularly?

When shopping, I prefer products that are not overwrapped or come in recyclable packaging. I bring my own bags when I go shopping. I encourage my parents to buy fair trade coffee. On occasion, I develop my creativity and create unique gifts for special people.

When I leave a room, I make sure to turn off the lights. When brushing my teeth, I save water by turning off the tap. At home, I either do my own composting or participate in a community composting project.

To encourage my community, I give priority to local products. Before buying anything, I ask myself if I really need it. I make sure to inform myself about the products I buy, as well as the living conditions of the people who make them.

When using the photocopier, I always make double-sided copies. Before printing a document, I make sure there are no mistakes to save paper. At school or at home, I use my own cup. When consuming, I follow the 3R principles: reduce, reuse and recycle.

3 Imagine you are a member of a youth center debate club. Debate the following questions:

- Do you believe businesses should play a role in promoting sustainable living?
- Do you think governments should implement policies to encourage sustainable living?
- How can education contribute to promoting sustainable living?

Present Perfect Continuous or Past Perfect Continuous

Unlike the present perfect continuous, which indicates an action that began in the past and has continued up to the present, the past perfect continuous indicates something that began in the past, continued in the past and also ended at a defined point in the past.

1 Analyse the sentences below. They use both the present perfect continuous and the past perfect continuous.

Identify the mistakes and correct them.

- I have been working for a bad company when I met my present boss, who offered me this job.
- I've been saying it for years—children should go to school and get a proper education!
- We ran like crazy for five blocks, but when we got to the train station, the express to New York had already been leaving.
- After seven years in Paris, Carson had been leaving and starting a new life.
- Why do your eyes look so tired? Has you been watching TV without your glasses again?
- Diana is a nurse at the local children's hospital. She had been looking after sick kids.
- Don, sit down and relax! You've been working like crazy for eight hours.
- Mary have been visiting Japan six weeks. She has a real affinity for the country.

2 Fill in with the correct form of the present perfect continuous or the past perfect continuous tense.

- I ... (drive) for over eight hours now. I am extremely tired.
- There is only a little cake left because your dad ... (eat) it in the past 3 days.
- He ... (cook) his mom's favourite dish for two hours when she walked into the kitchen.
- Bryan ... (write) all night and he's got 30 pages so far.
- I ... (wait) to hear from the admissions officer for more than a month before I applied to other colleges.
- Derrick ... (work) at the hospital for over two years before he left for Spain.
- I ... (read) for a long time but I am still at chapter 10.
- The dogs ... (bark) continuously until the owner finally came home and fed them.
- They ... (live) in New York for four years when they had to leave due to personal reasons.

4 Match the sentences on the left with the reasons provided on the right.

- I have been writing for hours.
- It has been raining all day.
- I am seeing the doctor in the afternoon.
- He had bruises all over his body, and his clothes were dirty.
- I have been working all day.
- A. He had been fighting.
- B. My hand is sore.
- C. My hand got a cramp.
- D. I am exhausted.
- E. I have not been feeling well for some time.

WRITING

1 A Tale of Transformation. In about 150-180 words, write about your personal transformation after deciding to live a more environmentally friendly life.

When writing, include the following:

- ✓ the areas of your life you decided to change;
- ✓ the strategies you have adopted to change your lifestyle;
- ✓ the challenges you have encountered along the way.

2 A World Without Waste. Imagine living a day in a completely waste-free society. In about 100-120 words, describe what this day would be like.

E

1 Read the facts below about global waste. In pairs, discuss and draw a conclusion. Share your opinion.

Trash Facts

We all know that trash is an eyesore, but understanding the facts about waste can motivate us and others to change our behaviour and advocate for societal improvements. Here are some statistics to better understand the scale of the issue.

How Much Trash Do We Produce?

Humanity currently produces two billion metric tonnes of waste each year, generated by 7.6 billion people. That's equivalent to more than 4,000 times the Burj Khalifa, the tallest building in the world.

Waste Is Getting Worse.

The World Bank Group predicts a 70% increase in waste generation worldwide by 2050. If people today don't demand change, global waste will continue to grow at an alarming rate.

Electric Shock

The age of the Internet has brought new challenges related to electronic waste, such as discarded PCs, laptops and mobile phones. In 2016, the world generated 44.7 million metric tonnes of e-waste. This is the equivalent of nearly 4,500 Eiffel Towers. According to the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), only 20% of this waste undergoes proper recycling. When disposed of improperly, e-waste releases dangerous chemicals that contaminate soil and groundwater, putting biodiversity, food and water sources at risk.

Trouble Under Water

Plastic already seems omnipresent near the coasts and in the sea. Currently, there is approximately a ratio of 1 tonne of plastic for every 5 tonnes of fish. However, by 2025, this ratio is expected to worsen to 1 tonne of plastic for every 3 tonnes of fish. If the trend continues, by 2050, the amount of plastic in the oceans will outweigh the amount of fish.

Food Waste

While 11% of the world's population is undernourished, one-third of all food produced annually for human consumption is lost or wasted. This includes leftover meals, discarded vegetable parts and expired products. In fact, 28% of the world's agricultural land is used each year to grow food that ends up being wasted. This means that millions of litres of water are wasted and large amounts of electricity are used for harvesting and processing food that will never be eaten.

Rethinking Recycling

Compared to landfills or incineration, recycling is usually the best option. However, only a small proportion of recyclable waste is actually recycled. For example, in 2015, only 20% of plastic and 35% of glass were recycled.

Rubbish Collection and Human Health

At least 2 billion people around the world do not have access to regular waste collection services. Furthermore, 33% of global waste is not managed in an environmentally safe manner. This waste mismanagement leads to a variety of diseases, resulting in up to one million deaths each year.

What Can You Do About It?

It's clear that trash doesn't just look bad; it's connected to many other environmental issues, such as the climate crisis and biodiversity loss. The way we consume and manage waste reveals how shortsighted we can be about our impact on the planet.

READING COMPREHENSION

1 Read the text and complete the tasks that follow.

The Legacy of Generations

In a picturesque village nestled among rolling hills, stood the O'Connor family farm, a testament to hard work, perseverance and unity passed down through generations. At the heart of the farm was Mary O'Connor, a wise and resilient matriarch, who had dedicated her life to upholding the family's traditions and values.

Mary had inherited the farm from her parents, who had worked tirelessly to build it from the ground up. Determined to honour their legacy, Mary raised her children—Liam, Mike, and Sean—with a deep appreciation for the land and the importance of family bonds.

As the years passed, the O'Connor family farm prospered, thanks to the tireless efforts of Mary and her children. Liam, the eldest, managed the day-to-day operations of the farm, while Mike cared for the animals and Sean helped with the crops.

Despite their different roles, the O'Connor siblings worked together smoothly; they shared values of hard work, dedication, and mutual respect, which guided them through life's challenges. Together, they weathered droughts, floods and economic downturns, their bond as strong as the sturdy oak tree standing at the centre of their farm.

As Mary grew older, she began to reflect on the legacy she would leave behind for future generations. She knew that the values instilled in her children—resilience, integrity and a deep connection to the land—were the foundation upon which the O'Connor family farm had been built.

Determined to pass on these values to her grandchildren, Mary gathered her family together one evening to share stories of their ancestors and the struggles they had overcome to build the farm from nothing. She spoke about the importance of hard work, honesty and loyalty, urging her grandchildren to carry on the legacy of their forefathers with pride and determination.

As the stars twinkled overhead, casting their gentle light upon the O'Connor family farm, Mary's grandchildren listened attentively, their hearts filled with reverence and gratitude for the sacrifices made by those who came before them. They knew that they had a responsibility to uphold the values of their family, not only for themselves but for the generations yet to come.

And so, as the years passed and the seasons changed, the O'Connor family farm continued to thrive, a beacon of hope and resilience in an ever-changing world. Each generation added their own chapter to the family's storied history, carrying on the traditions and values passed down through the ages with pride and reverence.

2 Answer the questions according to the text.

- Where does the O'Connor family live?
- Who is Mary O'Connor?
- Who helped Mary with growing the crops?
- What values did the O'Connor siblings share?
- Why did Mary gather her family together one evening?

3 Read the statements. Determine if they are true or false. Justify your choice.

- The O'Connor family is a patriarchal family.
- The siblings were as powerful as the oak tree on their farm.
- Resilience, integrity, and deep connection to the land were the basic values of the O'Connor family.
- The siblings had the responsibility to uphold the family values only for themselves.
- Each generation of the O'Connor family lived with pride and reverence.

4 Match the parts to form complete sentences.

WRITING

1 In about 150-180 words, write an essay on the following topic: Nowadays, families are not as close as they used to be. What do you think are the causes of this? What can be done to bring families closer together? Use linking words and phrases to connect your ideas.

2 There are not enough recycling bins in your neighborhood. In about 120-150 words, write a letter to your local council requesting the installation of more recycling bins. When writing the letter, include the following:

- ✓ explain the current situation;
- ✓ emphasise state the importance of recycling bins to the environment;
- ✓ politely request the installation of additional bins.

Bringing Ideas to Life

Newspaper Page: From Caring Hearts to Greener Starts

Create a newspaper page. The page will be divided into sections that explore different aspects of the topics:

- ✓ Caring for Others
- ✓ Our Family Bonds
- ✓ Our Personal Heritage
- ✓ Less Waste, Less Problems

1. Research and Planning:

- ✓ Investigate each of the topics.
- ✓ Collect quotes, facts, and statistics that support each topic.

2. Design the Newspaper Page. Your page should look like a professional newspaper, with clear sections for each topic.

Organise your page as follows:

Headline: Choose a catchy title for your page.

Top Article will include an article that summarises the main idea of the topic.

Side Column: will contain shorter articles or features for each of the other topics. Include tips, quotes, or stories.

Opinion Section: Include a personal reflection on why these topics matter to you or how they've impacted your life.

Visuals: Add images, graphs, or infographics related to the themes.

Quotes and Testimonials: Include relevant quotes or real-life testimonials that support the message of each topic.

3. Format and Design:

Size: Design your page to fit an A4 sheet or digital format.

Columns: Use 2-3 columns to mimic a real newspaper layout.

Fonts: Use easy-to-read fonts (e.g., Arial, Times New Roman) for the main body, with bold for headlines and subheadings.

Images and Graphics: Include relevant visuals to support the articles.

Colour Scheme: Keep the colour scheme simple and professional (e.g., black-and-white with accents of one or two colours for section highlights).

4. Present your newspaper page to your classmates.

Criteria		Points
Content and Relevance	Each section is well-researched, informative and relevant to the topic.	4
Clarity and Writing Quality	Write clearly, with proper grammar, structure and tone appropriate for a newspaper.	4
Personal Reflection	Thoughtful insights on how these topics connect to your own life and the world.	4
Presentation	Clear, confident and engaging presentation of the newspaper page.	4
Visual Appeal	Include appropriate images and graphics that enhance the overall presentation.	4
Creativity and Design	Use a professional newspaper layout with clear sections, images, and engaging design.	4

The School Journey

LEAD-IN

1 Look at the pictures. Name the places in the school. Complete the table below.

G

What is this place called?	What activities happen here?	Why is this place important in a school?

2 In pairs, discuss the places and things in your school that are special to you. Name at least two things or places. Explain why you have chosen them. Provide examples.

Example: I would choose the library because it's quiet and full of books.

LISTENING

1 Listen to Jack talking about his school. Answer the following questions:

- Where does Jack study?
- How does Jack usually go to school? Why?
- What time does school start and end?
- Name three facilities Jack's school has.
- Which subject is Jack's favourite, and why?
- What do you like about Jack's school?
- If you could add one facility to your school, what would it be? Why?
- Do you agree with Jack that school is important for the future?

2 Listen to the recording again. Identify three important activities Jack does during his day. Why are these activities important for Jack?

3 Create a timeline of Jack's daily routine. Talk about your daily routine, comparing it to Jack's.

Example: Like Jack, I also get up early, but I go to school by bus. Unlike Jack, my school doesn't have a laboratory.

1 Read the text. Does your school use ID cards? How do you use them?

Most students attend school at least 40 hours per week. This means that they spend a good amount of time there without their parents and legal guardians. One of the most important things a school can offer a student besides education and a sense of community, is safety. Having student identification cards serves as an extra layer of security.

School ID cards are an essential part of student life. They are small, portable cards that serve as a student's personal identification while on school premises. Typically, a school ID card includes the student's name, photograph, class or grade and a unique identification number. It may also display the school's logo, name and contact information.

These cards are more than just a form of identification. They play a vital role in maintaining school security by ensuring that only authorised individuals can access the campus. Many schools require students to show their ID cards to enter the building, borrow library books or participate in extracurricular activities.

Modern school ID cards often incorporate advanced technology. For example, some have barcodes or magnetic strips that can be scanned to mark attendance, check out materials from the library or purchase meals in the cafeteria. Others may include RFID (Radio Frequency Identification) chips for contactless access to school facilities.

In addition to their practical uses, school ID cards promote a sense of belonging among students. Carrying a card with the school's name and logo reminds students that they are part of a larger community. It also helps teachers and staff identify students quickly, especially in large schools.

School ID cards are more than just pieces of plastic. They are tools that improve safety, streamline daily activities and foster a sense of identity and community within the school.

2 Match the words in the Vocabulary Corner box with their definitions.

- the process of recognizing or proving who someone is;
- having official permission or approval to do something;
- a person who is legally responsible for the care and well-being of another, typically a child, in place of their parents;
- a symbol or design used by an organization to represent its identity;
- to simplify or make a process more efficient by eliminating unnecessary steps;
- a level of something, such as level of security, level of protection or stages in a process.
- a building and its surrounding land or grounds.

3 Complete the sentences using the words in the Vocabulary Corner box.

- Unauthorized people are not allowed on the ... without proper identification.
- Only ... personnel are allowed to access the laboratory after school hours.
- As my parents live abroad, my aunt is my legal ... while I am studying here.
- The school uses multiple ... of security, such as ID cards, cameras and guards, to ensure safety.
- The security guard checked everyone's ... at the entrance to the building.
- The company's ... is printed on all its products to make them easily recognizable.
- The manager suggested using digital ID cards to ... attendance tracking at the office.

4 Read the text again. Answer the questions.

- Why are school ID cards important for students?
- What information is typically included on a school ID card?
- How do modern school ID cards incorporate advanced technology?
- Besides identification, what other purposes do school ID cards serve?
- How do school ID cards promote a sense of belonging among students?

5 Read the statements. Decide whether they are true or false.

- School ID cards are only used to borrow books from the library.
- Barcodes and RFID chips are examples of advanced technology in school ID cards.
- School ID cards only display the student's name and photograph.
- Carrying a school ID card can make students feel more connected to their school.
- Teachers use school ID cards to identify students quickly.

SPEAKING

1 Work in groups. Examine the student ID card and the school ID card in detail. Identify and compare the elements present on both cards.

- List the similarities.
- Note the differences.
- Explain how the purpose of each ID card influences the type of information included on it.

2 Discuss the following questions:

- What are the most common types of ID cards you know?
- What is the main purpose of an ID card?
- Why do you think it's important to have identification documents?
- Why do different institutions, such as schools and governments, create specific types of ID cards?

3 Work in groups. Imagine you are the safety officer at your school. Describe the safety measures in place to protect students. Share your thoughts with your classmates.

- What security measures are implemented at your school? (e.g., ID cards, security cameras, locked doors, emergency drills)
- Are there any areas that need more attention or improvement?
- How do these measures make you feel?

4 Look at the picture showing different aspects of a school environment. Work in groups and discuss what each environment means. Use the questions below to guide your discussion. Share your ideas with your classmates.

- Physical Environment: What factors make a school physically comfortable for students?
- Social Environment: How do friendships, relationships with teachers, and communication affect the school atmosphere?
- Psychological Environment: How do mental health and emotional support impact students' well-being in school?
- Cultural Environment: How does a school support diversity and respect for different cultures?
- Learning Environment: How do classroom layout, resources, and teaching methods contribute to effective learning?

- 5 Think about your own school environment. Which of these aspects do you feel is the strongest in your school? Which one could be improved? Describe how each aspect affects your daily life at school.

GRAMMAR

Zero Article

1. We use the zero article when referring to places like school, college, university, or church when talking about them in a general sense, as institutions, not specific buildings.

Examples: I go to school every day.

She is studying at college.

He is in university now.

We attend church every Sunday.

2. We use zero article with "home" when referring to one's own residence.

Example: I'm going home after school.

3. When we refer to places like hospital, prison, work, court, and market in a general, non-specific sense, we usually do not use an article.

Examples: She works at hospital.

He has been to court.

They are at work now.

Note! The use of the zero article and the definite article depends on whether you are talking about the place in a general or specific context.

General context (zero article): I go to school every day.

Specific context (the article "the"): I went to the school for the meeting.

1 Complete the sentences using the correct article (if necessary).

- She is studying at ... university in London.
- I went to ... church this morning for the service.
- My parents want me to go to ... college after high school.
- They go to ... school every day, but I stay home today.
- We have a meeting at ... hospital later this afternoon.
- He is working at ... prison right now.
- I will be at ... work until 6 p.m. today.
- After class, I usually go to ... library to study.
- We are planning to visit ... market in the evening.
- I love going to ... beach on weekends.

2 Read the sentences below. Correct the mistakes.

- He is in the school studying for his exams.
- She goes to the church every Sunday for the prayer.
- I'm planning to go to university after I finish high school.
- We stayed at the hospital for the weekend.
- They are attending the college in New York.
- We have English lessons at the school.
- I'm going to the market to buy some fruits.
- They are at the work right now.
- He is at the college studying business.
- I enjoy visiting the beach during the summer.

WRITING

1 Imagine you have just moved to a new school and you want to share your experience with your best friend. In about 150 words, write a letter telling your friend about your new school. Include the following details:

✓ Introduction: Greet your friend and explain the purpose of your letter.

✓ Body:

- Paragraph 1: Describe your new school (location of the school, how is the school different from your previous one, describe some of the facilities at the school).
- Paragraph 2: Talk about the classes and your learning experience.
- Paragraph 3: Describe your social life and activities you're involved in.

✓ Conclusion: Express your feelings and end your letter with a friendly closing remark.

- ✓ consider comfort
- ✓ colour choice

READING

- 1 Read about the way the students from English-speaking countries present the school uniforms in their country. Name the schools and countries they represent.

Hey. I am Thomas, and I study at Guildford Grammar School, located in the suburb of Perth, Western Australia. When it comes to school uniforms, Australia is known for being strict. The idea of school uniforms has been around for a long time. In Australia it's something that is considered part of the culture. Most school uniforms have a few common elements. At Guildford Grammar School, for boys, the uniforms generally include a white or light blue button-up shirt together with either shorts (especially for summer wear) or long trousers, usually in grey. We are allowed to wear shorts only in younger years, and we must wear long trousers from around the age of puberty (13–14 years). Older boys wear shorts in summer due to the heat. When wearing short trousers, we pair them with long, nearly knee-length socks in the school's colours. Girls' uniforms generally include a checkered or striped dress (usually sleeveless or short-sleeved) worn over a blouse for summer. In most secondary schools girls wear a skirt as well as a button-up in winter with a blazer and tie. Girls can also choose to wear button-up shirts and dark trousers. The physical education uniform usually consists of shorts and a polo shirt, as well as a light weatherproof rain jacket, typically made of polyester, for winter and wet weather and sometimes a netball skirt for girls. Both boys and girls typically wear appropriate footwear, such as black shoes or sneakers.

Hi! I am Gladys, and I study at The Royal High School in Edinburgh. The school uniform is black and white, derived from the municipal colours of Edinburgh. When talking about compulsory items, I can mention the plain white or plain black shirt, blouse, polo shirt, or t-shirt. The only acceptable logo for this item is the school's badge. You can wear items like black pants, skirts, shorts, leggings or jogging trousers. The school badge is also the only option for a logo. You can wear a plain black V-neck jumper or cardigan, a school-branded hoody or a zoody. If you're wearing a hoody or zoody, this must be the school-branded version. Of course, when talking about shoes, they must be black, white or black and white. In the Royal High School, changing for PE is not compulsory. This means pupils can come to school dressed in their PE kit on PE days. Our PE kit consists of a plain black or white t-shirt or t-shirt with the school logo. If the sport trainers are not black/white, they should be carried and changed in at PE. If pupils wish to wear school uniforms on PE days, they will be allocated time/changing rooms at the start and end of lessons.

Hello! My name is Virginia, and I am a student at Newlands Intermediate School in Wellington, New Zealand. My school, as well as other state-integrated and private primary schools in New Zealand, have traditionally followed the British system of school uniforms. However, boys' uniforms typically consist of a jersey and grey short pants, rather than a blazer with a tie and long pants. Usually, this includes a range of clothes: for boys, this includes a business-style shirt with an official school tie and long or short pants. For girls, it includes a blouse and a plain or plaid (usually tartan) skirt. Certain schools, particularly in the South Island, require students to wear kilts, but my school does not. Both boys and girls wear an 'official' school jersey. Blazers and jackets are of varied colours according to the school: dark or light blue, grey, crimson, scarlet, green or black. In my school, it is followed the British practice of having contrasting colours edging the lapels and jacket fronts. Boys are usually required to wear long dark socks with short trousers, which may require garters to hold them up.

READING

- 1 In pairs, brainstorm some traditions your school has. Discuss why they are important for the school community.
- 2 Read the text. Find out why it is important to keep the school traditions.

School Traditions Leave a Lasting Impact

When talking about traditions, we know that they play an equally important role in shaping the culture and identity of a school. Traditions contribute to a sense of comfort and belonging, bring people together, encourage ongoing connection and reinforce shared values. They also provide context and space for meaningful reflection. Shared ideals and traditions contribute to the development of a healthy school culture. These include official customs, practices, programs, events and clubs that are managed by schools. Here are some traditions that students have.

Sarah: Fall Frolic and Spring Flight!

The one-hour lunches. During this time, campus clubs sell food and organise competitions to raise money for various club activities. It's a time for me to relax, have fun, eat and dance with my classmates.

Kathryn: Poly Pet Show.

At my school in Pasadena, California, there is a special day, a funny one, when students bring their pets to school to show them off and display crafts and projects they made about.

Oliver: Nerf Wars

Oh, high school... I remember the competitive activities we had. One of them is Nerf Wars, also known as Water Wars or Senior Tag. It is a senior tournament organised by seniors themselves, individuals or small teams, where they compete with each other in a water battle that can last several weeks. As seniors strategise and engage in such battles, they create lasting memories that will extend beyond their high school years.

Charlotte: Freshman Picnic

I adore when the entire Preston Community comes together to bond and have fun during our annual Freshmen Family Picnic! It is a day with a lot of great sportive activity for those who are new to the community to feel a sense of joy and welcome to the school spirit.

Ryan: Robing

The senior Showcase and Robing are two of my favourite traditions at our school. Students perform dance numbers as a whole group, followed by performances with their fine art classmates. For Graduation Day, each student picks two adults that mean a lot to them to prepare a few words about them and help them put on their graduation robe and regalia.

Patrick: Class Ring

In my school, all the seniors wore their own designed class rings. These rings serve as symbols of school pride and often have customised symbols or engravings. We also hold formal ring ceremonies or ring dances, where a graduating class all receives their rings together. Class rings not only commemorate the graduating class but also bring a sense of unity among students.

3 Match the pictures with the school traditions described in Exercise 2.

4 In the text, find answers to the questions below.

- What is a healthy school culture based on?
- Why do students need a one-hour lunch break?
- Why do students bring their pets to school?
- What is the purpose of the class rings?
- Who is involved in the water battles?
- What do students do on Freshmen Picnic Day?

5 Replace the words in bold with their synonyms from the text.

- Athletic success at this college has a long history.
- Scientists have found Neanderthal carvings in French caves.
- My grandmother's reminiscences of her Iowa girlhood were impressive.
- The second thing she does is come out in a simple white dress instead of full royal regalia.
- I prefer teaching methods that actively involve students in learning better.

- How do they feel after the performance?
- What skills do they need to be confident? Why?

4 Look at the list of personality adjectives and underline the ones you have heard in the dialogue. How many other personality adjectives do you know?

Adjectives describing personality:

bad-tempered brave flexible generous hard-working honest kind loyal lucky organized outgoing patient reliable sensitive shy tidy

5 Adjectives beginning with un-, dis-, im-, in-, il-, ir- have a negative meaning. Look at the adjectives in Exercises 2 and 4. Choose those that can have a negative prefix. Use the dictionary to help you.

Ex: enthusiastic (positive meaning)- unenthusiastic (negative meaning)

- 6 Describe yourself using appropriate adjectives (with or without negative prefixes). Include modifying adverbs such as a bit, quite or very if necessary.

Example: I think I'm quite hard-working, but I'm a bit disorganised.

GRAMMAR

- 1 Read the statements and explain the rules you observe.

- I love dancing. It's an amazing feeling when you do what you like to do.
- James was wearing a mask during the school show. I was terrified to see him like this.

Student Problems

LEAD-IN

- 1 With a partner, analyse the pictures. What emotions do they reveal? Use the discourse markers in the box to help you explain your ideas.

- 2 Consider the emotions students often experience throughout the school year. When are these feelings most common? What can students do to boost their confidence? Who should they talk to?
- 3 In pairs, identify some ways to deal with the problems shown in the pictures above. What should students do in order to avoid such situations?
- 4 Analyse the list below, containing tips that help you control your emotions while preparing for the new school year. With a partner, discuss which strategy works best for you. Do you think these tips are helpful for students? Explain why or why not.

- ✓ get everything prepared
- ✓ get a good night's sleep
- ✓ check your new timetable
- ✓ plan everything in detail
- ✓ do not stress about exams
- ✓ think ahead
- ✓ talk to someone

4. ... negatively affects cognitive function, memory and overall health.
A. Depression B. High self-esteem C. Lack of sleep
5. According to the World Health Organisation, depression affects ... people worldwide.
A. more than 264 million
B. more than 2 million
C. less than 200 million

- 4 Work in groups. Listen to the school psychologist again. Complete the table below with the required information. Discuss with the group members the possible solutions for each identified problem. Present the results to the class.

Problem	Solution

- 5 How can the challenges mentioned above affect the life of a dedicated student?

READING

- 1 Discuss the two terms “bullying” and “cyberbullying.” What is the difference between them? Explain.

- 2 Read the text. Think of a title. Justify your choice.

All friends joke with each other, but sometimes it’s difficult to tell if someone is just having fun or trying to hurt you, especially online. Sometimes they take the matter as a joke and tell you, “I was just kidding,” or “Don’t take it too seriously.”

But if you feel offended or think that others are laughing at you rather than with you, the joke has gone too far. If it continues even after you’ve asked the person to stop, and you’re still bothered by what happened, then it could be bullying. When bullying happens online, it can also attract unwanted attention from many people, including strangers.

The American Psychological Association Dictionary defines bullying as a persistent, threatening and aggressive behaviour, that can include verbal abuse directed towards others in vulnerable situations. It also refers to cyberbullying, a form of online bullying that involves threatening behaviour through electronic technology such as mobile phones, emails and text messages.

Bullying is a serious problem that causes harm. It doesn’t just hurt the person who is being bullied; it can also be harmful for the bullies and for any student who witnesses the bullying. Students who are bullied can have problems at school as well as with their mental and physical health. They are at risk of developing depression, anxiety and low self-esteem. These problems sometimes last into adulthood. Other problems are connected to health complaints, including headaches and stomachaches. Additionally, these students experience a decline in their grades and test scores throughout the academic year. As a result of these conditions, many students begin to miss and drop out of school. Students who bully others have a higher risk for substance use, problems in school and violence later in life. Those who are bullied are more likely to abuse drugs or alcohol and develop mental health problems.

If something happens that upsets you, you shouldn’t accept it. Say what you want, but, if it makes you feel bad and it won’t stop, then it’s better to ask for help from teachers, school psychologists or parents. It is essential to pay attention to warning signs, investigate and act to manage and reduce bullying.

Stopping bullying and cyberbullying is more than just exposing the bullies; it’s about recognising that we all deserve respect, both online and in real life.

- 3 Read the text again. Answer the following questions:

- When do you understand that a joke is not just for having fun?
- How are the phenomena of bullying and cyberbullying defined in the American Psychological Association Dictionary?
- Who can be negatively affected by bullying?
- What challenges might both the person being bullied and the student who witnesses the bullying face?

- 4 Match the beginnings in column A with the endings in column B.

| e. Students who witness bullying | 5. are more likely to abuse drugs or alcohol and have mental health problems. |
| f. To reduce bullying, it is essential | 6. have a higher risk for substance use, problems in school. |

5 In the text, find synonyms for the following words:

- a. damage c. ambitious e. associated g. maturity
b. irritated d. sensitive f. bad

6 Which children are more susceptible to bullying? Why does it happen? How can you help someone who is being bullied?

SPEAKING

1 Read the statements below. What do students think about school? Do you agree or disagree with them?

Justify your choice.

"I know it can feel like it'll never get better, but it's important not to lose hope. Try and push yourself to go out of your comfort zone. It's not easy, but it's worth it."
(Taryn)

"Please remember that, although school is important, it isn't worth sacrificing your mental health. You don't need to be the best to be good enough."
(Laura)

"Schools should be able to make all students feel supported and not ashamed to say they're struggling with their mental health."

WRITING

1 Work in groups. Identify a problem faced by school students. Develop questions designed to find the most effective solution. Analyse the question table. Create a mind map to illustrate it. Present the results to the class.

2 Reflect on your ability to manage problem-solving situations. Write a 150-word essay about a problem that students in your school deal with. Follow the plan.

Essay Plan

1. The introduction should properly address the issue and inform readers of its true impact.
2. The body section should provide multiple solutions (at least three) to the problem. The body could consist of three paragraphs or more.
3. The conclusion shouldn't be just another summary. It should provide the key impacts of the solutions presented in the essay.

LEAD-IN

1 Look at the two pictures. Identify the country they are coming from. Explain your choice.

2 Have you ever watched a movie featuring school life in the USA? How is it portrayed in movies? Do you think it is the same in real life?

3 Work in teams. Remember the information you already know about the American and the British educational systems. Complete the second and the third columns in the table below. The last column will be completed at the end of the lesson.

	I know	I would like to know	I learned
British Educational system
American Educational system

4 What country would you like to study in? Why?

5 Read about why students from other countries choose to study in the USA or UK. What do you think about?

Robin Hong, China

- ✓ The universities in the USA are of high quality.
- ✓ There are a lot of great professors in the universities in the USA.
- ✓ The universities are ranked at the top of the world.
- ✓ The university has a free atmosphere.
- ✓ Students and teachers have a friendly relationship.

Sarah Harris, UK

- ✓ UK universities place a strong emphasis on independent study.
- ✓ UK universities combine traditional lectures with a variety of innovative teaching techniques.
- ✓ UK universities have an extensive range of courses and programmes to choose from.
- ✓ studying in the UK for international students is considered safe. There is a low crime rate and strict regulations in place that ensure student welfare and security.

LISTENING

1 Listen to Ronald Steel, an American expert in education, who is talking about the specifics of the USA educational system. What is the age range of students who attend school in the USA?

2 Listen to the dialogue again. Answer the questions below.

- a. When do children start school in the USA?
- b. What are the steps students have to pass to take the exams?
- c. What subjects do students have when they are in elementary school?
- d. What do junior and senior students learn at high school?
- e. What extracurricular activities are available in American schools?

1 Read about the educational system in the UK. Explain the terms core subjects and foundation subjects. Are they used in your country? What do they stand for?

In Great Britain, children start going to school when they are five and continue studying until they are 16 or older. Compulsory education begins at the age of 5 when children go to primary school. Primary education lasts for six years. First, children attend an infant school from the age of five to seven. In the infant school, children don't have real classes. They familiarise themselves with the classroom and desks, engage in play and learn through play. They learn the numbers and how to count. When the children are seven, they go to a junior school, which they attend for four years. They have classes, read and write and do mathematics.

At a secondary school, students study English, Math, Science, Geography, History, Art, Music, Foreign Languages and Physical Training. English, Math and Science are called "core" subjects. Students take exams in the core subjects at the age of 7, 11 and 14. In one or more school years, a range of other subjects, known as foundation subjects, are compulsory. They include Art and Design, Citizenship, Design and Technology, Geography, History Information and Communication Technology, Modern Foreign Languages, Music and Physical Education.

At the age of 16, students have to pass national exams known as the General Certificate of Secondary Education (GCSE). An exam in each subject is taken. Students leave school with 10 GCSEs which are graded from A to F.

Students may then continue their secondary studies for a further two years, leading most typically to A-level (advanced level) qualifications, although other qualifications and courses exist, including Business and Technology Education Council (BTEC) qualifications or apprenticeships or the International Baccalaureate (IB). The leaving age for compulsory education was raised to 18. Taxes fund public schooling and sixth-form education. There are also private and boarding schools in England, where students attend classes and live.

Higher education often begins with a three-year bachelor's degree (some courses are four years; for example, modern languages have a compulsory year abroad). Postgraduate degrees include master's certificates and PhDs (Doctor of Philosophy) that usually take at least three years. Universities have a Royal Charter in order to issue degrees and all but one are financed by the state via tuition fees which cost up to £9,000 a term for English, Welsh and EU students. Oxford and Cambridge are the most famous universities in England and only accept exceptional students.

- 2 School life is influenced by the activities students participate in. Read the sentences. Match them with the pictures of the clubs they should join.

- Sarah is always dreaming about her favourite actors. She loves pretending to be someone else and enjoys entertaining others.
- John can read a book in one day! He loves spending his free time in the library, finding new and interesting books to read.
- Janet always gets top marks in her English tests and she enjoys helping others with their English homework. In her free time, she likes watching English TV shows and listening to English music.
- Ann is very athletic. She enjoys playing many different sports. She spends her free time exercising and playing games with her friends.
- Edward and his friends belong to a well-known band. Edward enjoys playing the guitar, but he can play many other musical instruments, including the piano and the drums.
- Sofi likes to draw and she is very good at painting. She spends her free time making crafts and homemade gifts for her family and friends.

- 3 How do extracurricular activities contribute to healthy school relationships/environments? What clubs do you have in your school? If there are none, which one would you like to have? Why?

Questions in Reported Speech

"When did she arrive?"	Wh-word+ auxiliary verb	→	Wh-word + subject + verb	He asked me when she had arrived .
"Did he call?"	Yes/ No Question	→	IF/ Whether + subject + verb	She asked if/whether he had called .

1 Read each sentence and the statements that follow it. Check and mark the correct one. Discuss your answers.

- "Have you seen this building before?" my uncle asked.
 - My uncle asked if we had seen that building before.
 - My uncle asked where have we seen that building.
- "Where did you go to watch the school match?" asked Tim.
 - Tim asked if they are going to see the school match.
 - Tim asked me where we had gone to watch the school match.
- "Is my computer ready?" Valery asked the man.
 - Valery asked the man about her computer.
 - Valery asked if her computer was ready.
- "What do you want to know?" she asked me.
 - She asked me what I wanted to know.
 - She asked me if I wanted to know.

2 Report the questions below.

What do you do in your free time?

Are you going away again?

Can you come with me to school?

Are you happy to play tennis every day?

Why were you late today?

When did you see her last time?

- ### 3 Play the game. One is the exchange student from the USA and the other is a reporter who is hard of hearing. The other students in the class will be the reporters. The reporters ask questions to the students who answer. The deaf reporter always asks, "What did he/ she say? and What did he/she answer?". The student who asked the question reports his/her question and the answer he/ she got.

What did he/she ask?

What did he/she say?

WRITING

- ### 1 Work in groups. Conduct a survey on students' opinions about the educational system in your country. What do they like and dislike about it? What should be done? Follow the steps:

- ✓ determine the participants;
- ✓ decide the type of the survey (face-to-face interview or online questionnaire);
- ✓ think about the questions you want them to answer;
- ✓ distribute the survey;
- ✓ analyse the results;
- ✓ make a presentation of the results.

Check Up Your Progress

READING COMPREHENSION

1 Read the excerpt. Think of a suitable title for it.

Research has shown a strong correlation between the involvement in extracurricular activities and the academic success. Students who participate in clubs, sports or other activities outside of their regular coursework tend to have higher grades, better attendance and improved attitudes toward learning. This correlation can be attributed to several factors, including the development of time management skills.

Participating in clubs and sports teaches students how to balance their time effectively, juggling the demands of practices, meetings and competitions with their academic responsibilities. This fosters a sense of discipline and organisation that can have a direct impact on school performance. By learning to prioritise tasks, set goals and manage their schedules, students are better equipped to handle the rigors of academics.

This is especially important for older students as they gain independence and learn to manage their own goals and priorities.

Extracurricular involvement can also contribute to improved cognitive skills, such as critical thinking, problem-solving and teamwork, all of which are essential for academic success. Students who engage in activities outside the classroom are more likely to develop a passion for learning and a sense of purpose, leading to higher levels of motivation and greater engagement in their schoolwork.

2 Match the words and phrases with their definitions.

- | | |
|--------------------|--|
| a. research | 1. an event or contest in which people take part in order to establish superiority or supremacy |
| b. involvement | 2. the act or process of taking part in something |
| c. time management | 3. investigation and study of materials and sources in order to establish facts |
| d. competition | 4. the ability to live without being helped or influenced by someone |
| e. independence | 5. the act of planning or organizing the time between different activities to maximize the effectiveness |
| f. teamwork | 6. the activity of working together in a group with other people |

3 Read the text again. Answer the questions below.

- How are students involved in extracurricular activities outside of their regular coursework?
- Why is it especially important for older children to become more disciplined and organised?
- What are the skills extracurricular involvement can also contribute to?

4 Joining a school club is more than just an extracurricular activity. Study the list below. Explain whether you agree or disagree. Provide reasons to support your viewpoint.

- ✓ Have lots of fun and relax their minds.
- ✓ Take a break from the monotony of studies.
- ✓ Add valuable points to their resume while job-hunting.
- ✓ Develop leadership skills that are essential for a job.
- ✓ Gain practical experience in a safe environment.
- ✓ Develop valuable contacts and networking opportunities.
- ✓ Learn about teamwork, tolerance and collaboration.

WRITING

1 Write a blog post about a recent event or a school tradition that took place in your school.

When writing, follow the structure:

- ✓ Give your blog a title that will catch the reader's eye.
- ✓ Express your feelings and thoughts.
- ✓ Give details in the main part of your post.
- ✓ In conclusion, add your final thoughts, but avoid repetitions.
- ✓ Allow space for additional comments, such as a question.

USEFUL PHRASES

Rhetorical questions:

- Have you been wondering why/ what/ when/ how...?
- Are you one of those people who...?
- How do you feel about...?

Phrases for emphasizing the blogger-reader relationship:

- I'm sure you'll agree/ share my opinion...
- I'm convinced you'll support my viewpoint/ will understand what I am driving at ...
- Guess what/ Believe it or not!

Possible "open" conclusions:

- I'm out of time, but hopefully I'll be able to update later.
- Check back for more updates, as I'll try to keep them posted regularly.

Bringing Ideas to Life

Interview: Our School, Our Culture

Conduct an interview with a teacher, student or school staff member.

Interview Structure:

1. Introduction (5-7 minutes):

- ✓ Begin by introducing yourself and the purpose of the interview.
- ✓ Provide the interviewee with a brief overview of the topic: “Our School, Our Culture.”
- ✓ Ask them to briefly introduce themselves and their role at the school.

2. School Environment and Community (8-10 minutes):

- ✓ In this section, focus on understanding the school’s atmosphere, the relationship between students and staff members.

3. Cultural Practices and Traditions (7-10 minutes):

- ✓ Explore the traditions, rituals, and cultural practices that help define the school’s identity.

4. Personal Reflections and Experiences (5-7 minutes):

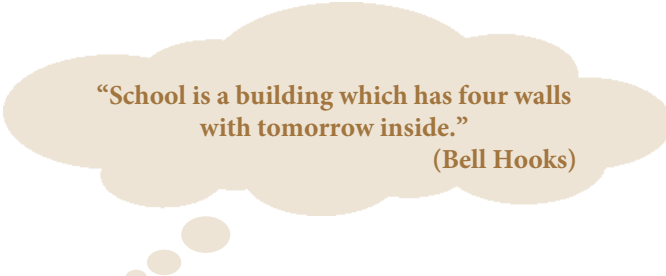

- ✓ Allow the interviewee to share their personal reflections on what makes the school culture unique.

5. Closing (2-3 minutes):

- ✓ Thank the interviewee for their time and insights. Ask if they have any final thoughts or reflections on the topic.

6. Write a reflection. Consider how the school culture has influenced the community and the personal development of those within it.

Criteria		Points

READING

1 Colleen Ford, a South African journalist, decided to move to the USA and studied the symbols of the country to become part of the nation. Read the text. Identify the meaning of some of the symbols.

National symbols are not mere images or icons; they are embodiments of a nation's identity, values and history. In the United States symbols like the flag and the Great Seal serve as unifying forces, reminding citizens of their shared heritage and principles.

These symbols are not static but evolve over time, reflecting the changing nature of American society. I will explain the origins and why some of these symbols are iconic to every citizen.

People often refer to the American flag as “The Stars and Stripes,” “Old Glory” or “The Star-Spangled Banner”. It has 13 horizontal stripes, 7 red and 6 white, which stand for the original 13 states. In the top left-hand corner, there are 50 white stars on a blue background: one star for each state. Each of the colours on the flag has a meaning: red—valour and bravery; white—purity and innocence; blue—vigilance, perseverance and justice.

Francis Scott Key created “The Star-Spangled Banner” in 1814, but it became the national anthem in 1931. The national flag inextricably links with the anthem's history. Being impressed by a proudly fluttering flag, Francis Key wrote the first lines of the anthem. The fact that the national anthem has survived many historical catalysts testifies to its enduring value that does not tarnish from time. For many years, the anthem has inspired the Americans to feats, dedication and devotion to their multinational motherland.

The Great Seal of the United States is the emblem of America. The U.S. Department of State operates the only official seal in existence. The Secretary of State must authorise its use. The design includes an eagle, the number 13 (standing for the original colonies) and the motto “e pluribus unum,” which is a Latin phrase meaning “Out of many, one.” It was adopted by the Continental Congress in 1776 and has been used ever since.

The Liberty Bell, a symbol of American freedom and democracy, bears the inscription “Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof.” The bell developed a crack after more than 90 years of use in Pennsylvania's State House, now known as Independence Hall continued to crack during the repair process. After that time, it did not return to active use, instead becoming a beloved American symbol. The original Liberty Bell is now on display in Philadelphia.

2 Match the words in bold in the text with their corresponding groups of synonyms.

- simple, pure, unimportant
- enlarge, develop, increase
- legendary, famous, popular
- field, landscape, framework
- unpleasant, tricky, inseparably
- floating, waving, flying
- performance, triumphs, acts
- cradle, hometown, nativity
- solely, just, exclusively
- straight, plane, parallel

3 Read the text again. Decide if the statements below are true or false. Correct them.

- Symbols like the flag and the Great Seal remind citizens of their shared heritage and principles.
- In the top right-hand corner, there are 50 white stars on a blue background: one star for each state.
- The national anthem “The Star-Spangled Banner” was created by Francis Scott Key in 1931.
- The anthem has inspired the Americans to feats, dedication and devotion to their motherland.
- The use of the Great Seal of the United States must be authorised by the President.
- The design of the Great Seal of the US includes a bison, the number 14 and the motto, “In God we trust.”.

4 Read the text again. Say what the numbers below refer to.

- 6
- 50
- 1931
- 1800
- 90
- 1814

SPEAKING

1 In groups, discuss the following:

- What does national identity mean to you? Why is it important to recognise it in yourself and others.
- Why is it essential to know the symbols of your motherland, such as flags, national monuments or cultural icons?
- How can understanding and respecting these symbols help you feel more connected to your country and act as a responsible citizen?

2 In pairs, examine the picture of the Statue of Liberty. Note specific elements of the statue’s design. Identify the features that represent freedom. Explain how they reflect this concept.

3 Read the quotations below. Reflect on them. Which one resonates with you the most? Explain it.

- “True freedom is understanding that we have a choice in who and what we allow to have power over us.” (Meryl Streep)
- “For to be free is not merely to cast off one’s chain, but to live in the way that respects and enhances the freedom of others.” (Nelson Mandela)
- “Freedom is not worth having if it doesn’t include the freedom to make mistakes.” (Mahatma Gandhi)

The Saxon Genitive

The Saxon Genitive ('s) with indefinite pronouns

The Saxon genitive is used with indefinite pronouns in the same way it does for nouns. When we use the possessive form of indefinite pronouns, we add an apostrophe and an "s" ('s) to indicate possession.

Examples:

Someone's idea: This shows that the idea belongs to someone.

Anyone's guess: This suggests that anyone could make the guess.

Nobody's business: This means that it is not anyone's concern.

The Saxon Genitive ('s) to express time and duration

The Saxon genitive ('s) is often used in English to express time and duration, typically referring to a specific period or span of time associated with someone or something.

Examples:

The job includes two weeks' vacation.

1 Fill in the blanks with the correct form of the Saxon Genitive for the indefinite pronouns in brackets.

- ... opinion matters a lot in this discussion. (anyone)
- It was ... fault that we missed the train. (nobody)
- I don't agree with ... decision. (someone)
- ... job is to clean the office. (everyone)
- I don't know ... suggestion to follow. (anyone)
- ... work was completed on time. (somebody)

2 Complete the sentences using the correct form of the Saxon Genitive to show time or duration.

- I'll need ... help to finish the project. (two days)
- We need ... notice before we can make a decision. (three weeks)
- It took ... work to review the entire book. (a month)
- ... opinion will be heard in the meeting. (today)
- Their ... vacation was perfect. (three weeks)
- The school team won ... match. (yesterday)

3 Rewrite the sentences using the Saxon Genitive form of the indefinite pronouns. Complete them with your own ideas.

- The idea belongs to someone.
→ _____ idea.
- The opinion belongs to anyone.
→ _____ opinion.
- This is the fault of nobody.
→ _____ fault.
- The responsibility belongs to everyone.
→ _____ responsibility.

4 Read the sentences. Identify the mistakes. Correct them.

- Anyone's opinion is important in a democracy.
- Nobody's idea was accepted during the meeting.
- Someone's advice are really helpful.
- Everyone's efforts was appreciated.
- Nobody's decision matters more than yours.
- Somebody's comments on the proposal were ignored.

WRITING

1 In groups, create a dialogue where you use both the indefinite pronouns and time expressions in the Saxon Genitive form. Some possible scenarios:

- Planning a holiday: "How long is anyone's trip to Paris?"
- Discussing responsibilities at work: "It's everyone's job to stay organized."
- Giving advice: "Someone's advice could help you make a good decision."

2 Imagine you are writing to a pen friend who lives in another country. In your letter, describe the USA, highlighting interesting aspects about the country. Use the following points as a guide to help you structure your letter:

- ✓ Introduction: Greet your pen friend. Mention that you want to tell him/her about the USA.
- ✓ Body: Share some interesting aspects of the USA, such as holidays, traditions, symbols, landmarks. Give some details that you think are exciting.
- ✓ Conclusion: Finish your letter by inviting your pen friend to ask more questions about the USA. Mention that you would love to hear about his or her country, too.

READING

- 1 Read the text. Say why it is important to have decent behaviour in society.

Manners largely reflect people's internal culture, as well as their moral and intellectual qualities. The ability to behave appropriately in society is very important: it facilitates the establishment of contacts, contributes to mutual understanding and creates strong, lasting relationships. Therefore, in order to educate real ladies and gentlemen, they should clearly understand why all these boring rules of etiquette are necessary in society. From childhood, we become familiar with the rules of conduct, customs, traditions and values. Knowing the rules and norms allows us to manage and control our behaviour.

Since a person is a social being, it is simply impossible for them to live their entire life outside of society. A person must consider the established norms and forms of behaviour in society as a whole, in specific situations, or in a particular society. Often, what is unacceptable in one society may be permissible in another. However, it is crucial for each individual to establish fundamental principles of behaviour that will guide their values and actions, thereby shaping their relationships with others and ultimately influencing their success in life.

The norms of human behaviour in society and in relationships with other people have been formed over the centuries. However, these norms were not always the same. The social system changed, as did the social and economic divisions of the population. The customs among the society of the aristocracy, the middle class, the clergy, the workers, the peasants, the intelligentsia and the military were different. At the same time, the behaviour of young people and adults was different and the national and social traditions on which these norms of behaviour were based also varied. For representatives of the supreme state, the aristocracy had established firm rules of conduct, the ignorance or violation of which was considered a sign of poor education.

Human behaviour, that is, the way of life and actions, depends not only on the character of a person and their habits, but also on how they follow certain rules and norms set by society.

- 2 In the text, find the words corresponding to the definitions below.
 - a. to start a company or organization that will continue for a long time.
 - b. to learn about something.
 - c. special, or this and not any other.
 - d. to order, limit, or rule something, or someone's actions or behaviour.
 - e. a class of people who hold high social rank.
 - f. the religious leaders whose job is serving the needs of their religion and its members.

3 Complete the sentences using the words from Exercise 2.

- She wanted a ... type of cactus to prepare it for her husband.
- The bishops and the ... are likely to support change by a wide margin.
- Tourists needed to ... themselves with the local rules and specific manners.
- The government is trying to ... spending money on useless things.
- These methods of working were ... in the last century.
- People might achieve the aim of gathering in societies in many forms: democracy, ..., or monarchy.

4 Read the text. Determine if the statements are true or false.

- The ability to behave correctly in society facilitates the establishment of good, stable relationships.
- At an elementary school, we get familiar with the rules of conduct, customs, traditions, values.
- When some norms are unacceptable in one society it becomes unacceptable for all the countries.
- The ignorance or violation of norms for representatives of the supreme state was considered a lack of education.

5 Reflect on the elements of culture that make a person highly respected and admired by their friends or acquaintances. Consider the values, behaviours, traditions and personal qualities that stand out. List the specific cultural traits, habits, or values that contribute to this respect and make someone unique within their social circle. Share your ideas with the class.

SPEAKING

1 In pairs, analyse the diagram.

- Look at each cultural influence shown around the person in the center. For each source, decide whether cultural learning occurs through observation and imitation or direct teaching (or possibly both).
- Explain how each source might use these methods.
- Think of specific examples where you have observed or experienced cultural learning from each source.
- Share your thoughts with other classmates.
- Compare the examples and see if the others have observed similar cultural influences from these sources.

2 Work in groups. Look and analyse the given features of your own social culture in the table below.

- For each feature, discuss and write down an example that reflects the typical behavior or expectation in your own culture. Consider how most people in your country would approach each of these aspects.
- Think about how these cultural features might be different in other countries.
- Discuss how differences in these areas could lead to misunderstandings when interacting with people from other cultures.

Cultural Features	Examples reflecting the culture of your country	How features might differ and lead to misunderstanding in other countries
Social greetings
Decision- making speed
Openness of communication
Acceptable personal space
Personal grooming
Gestures that reflect understanding/ agreement

3 Describe a personal experience of culture shock.

- What was the situation?
- How did you feel?
- Why do you think you felt that way?
- How was this different from the culture you identify with?
- What was unusual or unexpected?
- Reflect on this cultural feature now. How do you feel about it after some time has passed? Has your perspective changed?

Culture shock is used to describe the emotional and physical discomfort a person experiences when moving to a completely new environment.

Adjectives

Attributive adjectives	Predicative Adjectives
Adjectives that come before a noun are called attributive adjectives and they provide details about the noun they modify.	Adjectives that appear after a linking verb (like "is," "seems," "becomes") and describe the subject of the sentence are called predicative adjectives.
The happy child was running in the park. My mom gave me a tedious task.	The child seems happy . The task he gave me looks tedious .

1 Break down each sentence into three parts. Write each part in the correct column of the table.

Linking verb	Predicate adjective	Subject that is modified

Where to go next: Choosing Your Next Travel or Vacation Spot

You will never guess that choosing the right travel destination isn't always as easy as it sounds. It's about understanding your personal travel preferences and recognising the importance of selecting a destination that resonates with your desires and expectations. Timing is important, as are seasonal considerations, ease of access and of course the big one: budget! Let's go over the factors I take into account when planning my next trip.

1. Consider the time you have available to travel.

Many of us dream of having endless funds and plenty of time to travel, but in reality, we typically have financial and temporal limitations. I start by thinking about how much time I have available. Knowing your time constraints is essential, whether you're planning a short weekend getaway or an extended, months-long adventure. This knowledge will help you select a location that will allow you to fully enjoy your time. Time also determines the kind of vacation I usually take.

2. Budget Restraints

It's important to evaluate your financial status and choose a trip budget that suits your needs. This step is essential for choosing travel destinations that fit within your budget. I've made every effort to get to Morocco, North Africa, for nearly two weeks. The other year I spent 10 days in Peru, where I visited the Rainbow Mountain, the city of Cusco and the 15th-century Inca citadel of Machu Picchu. Most of my trips are supremely budget-focused; however, there are occasions where I know I have to lash out and spend the money to have the experience.

3. Cultural and Communication Compatibility

When you're heading to a new spot, it's super important to get the lowdown on the local culture—like what's cool and what's not. Every place has its own vibe and ways of doing things, which may differ significantly from your own. Getting this right can make your trip awesome and help you meet locals. Knowing the culture and language before you go can really help you dive into the place and improve communication with the people you meet there.

A great recommendation for those who choose to visit a city are the city cards. If you want to see a lot of popular sights in a single city and you have a tight budget, a city card might be a good idea. The cards are valid for a limited number of days and give you admission to all the most popular sites as well as discounts for restaurants and other businesses. Look up these deals ahead of time online and do the math to see if they'll save you money.

2 In the blog post, find the synonyms for the word lists below. Make up sentences using them.

- | | | |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------|---------------------------|
| a. location, point, spot | e. decide, check, calculate | i. fixed, stable, compact |
| b. hope, intention, chance | f. fortress, bastion | j. finite, restricted |
| c. infinite, interminable | g. detail, explanation | |
| d. figure, induce, regulate | h. amazing, breathtaking | |

3 Answer the questions according to the text.

- How should we choose the right travel destination?
- What are the two most important factors we have to think about first?
- What knowledge will help you select the perfect location?
- How does a trip budget influence our decision?
- What can make our trip more awesome and help us connect with the locals?
- What is the advice the blogger gives us if we want to see a lot of popular sights?

4 Work with your deskmate. Read the list with tips for choosing a travel destination. Rank the tips from the most important to the least important. Explain your choice.

Tips for choosing a travel destination

- ✓ Think about timing.
 - ✓ Establish your budget.
 - ✓ Consider your travel companions.
 - ✓ Choose your environment preference.
 - ✓ Get recommendations from well-travelled friends.
 - ✓ Focus on the experience you want to have.
 - ✓ Plan to learn about a different culture.
- Get inspired

SPEAKING

1 Work in groups. Answer the questions and report the findings.

- Is tourism a big industry in your country? Where do most tourists go? Why?
- Do you see more domestic or international tourists travelling around your country?
- Are there any special festivals or foods that attract tourists to your area?
- Which nationalities visit your country as tourists the most often?
- What could your country do to attract more tourists from around the world?

2 Choose a type of travel that resonates with you personally and offers unique opportunities and challenges. Explain how this travel style could make your experience memorable and distinctive. Share why you'd like to try this type of travel, providing specific examples and reasons to support your choice.

Passive Voice

In passive sentences the direct object appears before the verb, while the subject follows it. The passive voice emphasises the result of the action rather than the one performing it.

"to be" + V₃

e.g. The championship game was won by the school's basketball team.
The stove was turned on by my mother.

Present Simple: is/ am/ are + V₃ e.g.

Food is cooked by the chef.

Past Simple: was/were + V₃

e.g. The nut was eaten by the squirrel.

Future Simple: will be + V₃

e.g. The parcel will be opened by the child the next day.

1 Use the present simple passive for the verbs in brackets.

- Uniforms ... (wear) in many schools.
- In summer, a lot of ice cream ... (eat) around the world.
- Milk ... (keep) in the fridge.
- English ... (speak) in many commonwealth countries.
- Today, many cars ... (make) in South Korea.

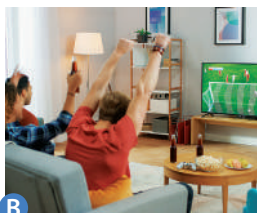

2 Use the past simple passive for the verbs in brackets.

- The song Yesterday ... (compose) in 1965.
- Buckingham Palace ... (build) in 1703.
- The bed ... (not make) by the kids this morning.
- The royal funeral ... (watch) by millions of people.
- The London Zoo ... (visit) by Ann last week.

4 Look at the pictures below. Identify what is happening or what is being shown in each one. Write a sentence in the passive voice to describe each picture.

F

3 Use the future simple passive for the verbs in brackets.

- The second part of the book ... (publish) next year.
- The job ... (do) by tomorrow morning.
- The new film ... (not show) in the local cinema.
- The order ... (take) by the new waiters.
- Some trees ... (plant) in our street the next week.

WRITING

1 Write a 150-word blog post describing your ideal travel destination for your next adventure.

- ✓ Start by sharing what you want from this trip: relaxation, adventure, or a cultural experience.

LEAD-IN

- 1 Look at the pictures. Identify at least two specific differences between them. Based on your observations, decide whether each picture represents a country or a city lifestyle. Explain your reasoning. Consider factors such as: the amount of greenery or open space, types of buildings, noise levels or busyness and transportation.

- 2 With a partner, decide which place is most likely to offer each of the following experiences. For each experience, explain why you associate it with a specific place. Think about how city life and country life might offer different environments and opportunities for these activities and experiences.

Example: Exciting night life is more likely in the city because there are more clubs, bars and events that stay open late...

READING

1 Read the information about an important tourist state in the USA. Find out how many people visit this place each year. What are the symbols of the state?

New York - The Empire State

As one of the original thirteen states, New York has long been a centre for banking, industry and trade. The state has several large cities but it is also home to forests and fertile farmland. New York City, located at the mouth of the Hudson River in southeastern New York State, is both a city and a port. It is the largest and most influential American metropolis, encompassing Manhattan, Staten Islands, the western sections of Long Island and a small portion of the New York state mainland to the north of Manhattan. The five boroughs of New York City—Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens and Staten Island—are actually a collection of numerous neighbourhoods, each with its own distinct way of life. Moving from one metropolitan neighbourhood to another can be like travelling from one country to another. The nation's most international and most populated city is New York. Its metropolitan area encompasses adjacent regions of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. Located where the Hudson and East Rivers empty into one of the world's premier harbours, New York is both the gateway to the North American continent and its preferred exit to the oceans of the globe.

SPEAKING

1 Choose Your Holiday Destination.

- a. Make a list of five cities you would love to visit on your next holiday. Think about cities that interest you for their culture, landmarks, or activities.
- b. Rank these cities from most important to least important based on your interest and reasons for wanting to visit.
- c. Find two other classmates and discuss your lists with them. Share why you ranked each city as you did, and listen to their reasons as well.

2 Work in pairs. Summarise your conclusions. Share them with the class.

Example: We both prefer quiet, scenic locations, but I want to live near the ocean, while my partner prefers a mountainous area...

In a word

Originally, New York was a Dutch colony named New Netherlands, and New York City was New Amsterdam. When England won New Amsterdam from the Dutch in 1664, they named the city and state New York in honour of the Duke of York and Albany, King Charles II's brother. People who lived in New York or who come from New York are called New Yorkers.

3 Read the text again. Match the definitions below with the words in bold.

- c. land that is used for or is suitable for farming
- d. a town, or a division of a large town
- e. an area of water near land where ships can stay safely
- f. to include several different things

3 Pair up with a classmate and discuss the following questions.

A. Take turns sharing your thoughts and reasons for each question.

- a. Which place would you prefer to live in?
- b. What factors are most important to you when choosing a place to live?
- c. What do you think it would be like to live in your ideal place?
- d. How similar or different is this place compared to where you live now?

B. Together, identify any common ideas or major differences in your preferences. Consider why certain aspects (such as climate, activities or lifestyle) appeal to each of you.

Prepositional Phrases

preposition + object modifiers (optional) + noun/pronoun/noun phrase preposition modifier object

The teacher sat at her desk.

It is called an adjective phrase when it modifies a noun.

e.g. The book on the table is mine. (The phrase “on the table” describes the noun “book.”)

It is known as an adverb phrase when it adds details to a verb.

e.g. She arrived before noon. (The phrase “before noon” modifies the verb “arrived” by giving information about time.)

1 Underline the prepositional phrase in each sentence.

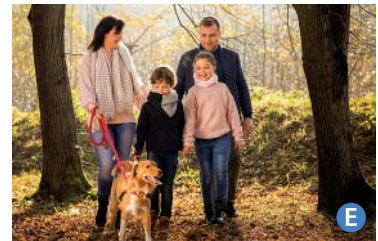

- I could understand the lesson with difficulty.

LEAD-IN

- Look at the images depicting elements related to a significant historical event. Identify the event these images are connected to. Discuss about it using the questions:
 - What is the event?
 - What key details do you know about this event?
 - When and where did it take place?

- Read the fascinating facts below about the 4th of July. Choose the one that you find the most surprising. Explain why you chose this fact and give reasons for your choice.
 - The Declaration of Independence was signed by 56 men from 13 colonies.
 - The average age of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence was 45. The youngest was Thomas Lynch, Jr. (27) of South Carolina. The oldest delegate was Benjamin Franklin (70) of Pennsylvania. The lead author of The Declaration, Thomas Jefferson, was 33.
 - Only John Hancock actually signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. All the others signed later.
 - The only two signers of the Declaration of Independence who later served as President of the United States were John Adams and Thomas Jefferson.
 - Every 4th of July, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia is tapped (not actually rung) thirteen times in honour of the original thirteen colonies.
 - Presidents John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe all died on the 4th of July. Adams and Jefferson (both signed the Declaration) died on the same day within hours of each other in 1826.

READING

1 Do you know who Uncle Sam is and why the United States is associated with this character? Read the text and find the answer to this question.

Uncle Sam is a well-known American icon who is typically shown as a cartoon character with long white hair and chin whiskers, dressed in a swallow-tailed coat, vest, tall hat and striped pants. His appearance is based on two earlier symbolic figures in American folklore: Brother Jonathan, a rural American wit who consistently defeated his opponents in plays, stories, cartoons and poetry through unexpected displays of native intelligence and Yankee Doodle, a British-inspired nickname for American colonials during the American Revolution.

While the exact origin of "Uncle Sam" remains a matter of debate, it is commonly associated with Samuel Wilson, a merchant from Troy, New York, affectionately known as "Uncle Sam" Wilson. During the War of 1812, he provided the army with barrels of beef that were marked "U.S." to indicate government property. A resolution approved by Congress in September 1961 acknowledged Wilson as "the progenitor of America's national symbol of Uncle Sam" and it is believed that this connection contributed to the nickname Uncle Sam being widely used for the United States.

Uncle Sam and his predecessor Brother Jonathan were used interchangeably to represent the United States by American cartoonists from the early 1830s to 1861. Perhaps the most famous image of Uncle Sam was created by artist James Montgomery Flagg (1877–1961). In Flagg's version, Uncle Sam wears a tall top hat and blue jacket and is pointing straight ahead at the viewer. During World War I, the portrait of Sam with the words "I Want You For The U.S. Army" was used as a recruiting poster. Leslie's Weekly first featured the image, which gained immense popularity, on its cover in July 1916 under the title "What Are You Doing for Preparedness?" The poster was widely distributed and has subsequently been re-used numerous times with different captions.

Wilson died at age 87 in 1854 and was buried next to his wife Betsey Mann in the Oakwood Cemetery in Troy, New York, the town that calls itself "The Home of Uncle Sam."

2 Read the text carefully. Answer the following questions:

- What does Uncle Sam look like?
- Who are the other two symbolic figures in American folklore?
- Who is Uncle Sam usually associated with?
- How did the Congress resolution acknowledge Wilson in September 1961?
- Who created the most famous image of Uncle Sam?
- What were the words written on the poster with Uncle Sam during WWI?
- What magazine featured the poster later in 1916?

READING COMPREHENSION

- 1 Read the excerpt. Identify what a staycation is and what its advantages are.

Staycation is a new and important idea in tourism. The word comes from “stay” and “vacation”, meaning a “vacation at home.” It refers to taking a vacation at home or nearby. People choose to engage in local or regional tourism, often within their own city. This trend developed during the COVID-19 crisis when people started exploring their local areas because of travel restrictions. In this context, locals become tourists in their own environment, visiting tourist attractions they may not have visited before, despite their proximity and availability.

Several factors have boosted the popularity of staycations. These include COVID-19, rising living costs and a desire to help the planet. By June 2020, in a Bloomberg article, experts said that staycationers could help fill hotels in the US and Europe. This prediction proved to be accurate, as the number of staycations have increased since the pandemic. A report published in August 2022 showed that 20% of British people chose not to travel abroad, and 16% planned a staycation to save money. Inflation and higher airline ticket prices influenced these choices.

Staycation tourism offers benefits for both travellers and tourism businesses.

First, staycations are more sustainable. Local tourism means less need for polluting transportation such as airplanes. People can use electric trains or cars instead.

Second, staycation help people save money. The 2008 economic crisis made staycations popular in Europe. With the pandemic and the Russia-Ukraine War causing high energy costs, staycations has become a practical and cost-effective choice.

Staycations are comfortable. You avoid the stress of packing and organising for a big trip. There are no airport hassles or flight delays to worry about.

The concept of staycations has returned and appears to be here to stay for a number of reasons, including the current energy crisis in Europe, the increasing interest in local tourism and travellers’ growing awareness of sustainability.

READING

- 1 Read the text. What made Greta famous worldwide? Why did she gain so much attention?

A Born Activist

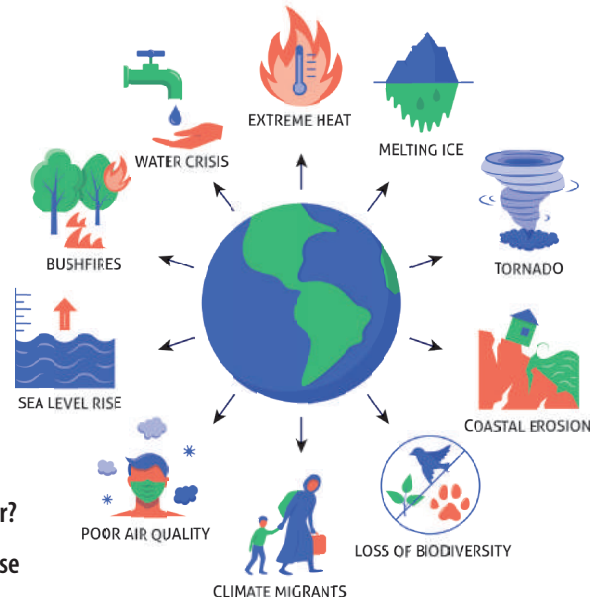

Greta Tintin Eleonora Ernman Thunberg is a Swedish activist. She is known for her work against climate change, a popular example of youth activism. Greta comes from a famous family. She is the oldest daughter of Malena Ernman, an opera singer and her father, Svante Thunberg, an actor.

Greta was only eight when she first learned about the climate crisis and couldn't understand why so little was being done about it. From a feeling of helplessness, she became depressed and often stopped talking – a condition known as selective mutism. She was also diagnosed with Asperger syndrome. It is a mild form of autism.

Thunberg says that she sees things in black and white; she clearly sees the real danger facing the planet. She said that the only thing that helped her to overcome her depression was to protest and speak about climate change

- g. How does Greta Thunberg reply to those who criticise her for skipping school?
- h. According to Greta, what do we need more than hope in the fight against climate change?

and environmental issues. Thunberg said that she can't let things go like other people, but she feels the need to keep speaking about climate change, no matter how awkward or difficult it proves to be.

In May 2018, when she was 15, she won an essay writing competition on the environment organised by a Swedish newspaper. This prompted her to attend meetings with an environmental group, Fossil Free Dalsland, which was actively working to combat climate change. Thunberg decided to lead a school strike to raise awareness.

Sweden had many heat waves and wildfires that year, but these had been ignored by the Swedish government. On August 20, 2018, Greta Thunberg sat alone outside the Swedish parliament in protest against climate change. She said she would not return to school until after the Swedish General Election on 9 September. After the elections, she went on strike every Friday at the Swedish Parliament to protest a lack of action against climate change. Although she took one day off each week for protests, she caught up on her homework on other days and stayed in the top 5 in her class.

Her protest soon spread on social media to other schoolchildren of her age. It also received a lot of media coverage. The school strikes quickly spread around the world, making headlines on the front pages of newspapers. Greta said: "Many people say that Sweden is just a small country and it doesn't matter what we do. But I've learnt that you are never too small to make a difference, and if a few children can get headlines all over the world just by not going to school, then imagine what we could all do together if we really wanted to".

After Greta became popular on social media, many other students around the world began to strike along with her. In November 2018, in Australia, thousands of students began to strike on Fridays, ignoring their Prime Minister telling them to go back to school. The term "Fridays for the Future" refers to the school strikes, also known as the "school strike for the climate" due to the day of the week they occur. It is also the social media hashtag for the climate strikes.

The 2019 Global Week for Future was a series of 4500 strikes across over 150 countries on Friday, September 20 and Friday, September 27. They are the largest climate strikes in world history. The 20th September strikes gathered roughly 4 million protesters, many of them schoolchildren, including 1.4 million people on strike in Germany. On September, 27 an estimated 2 million people participated in strikes worldwide, including over 1 million protesters in Italy and several hundred thousand protesters in Canada.

3 Determine if the statements are true or false. Justify your choice.

- Greta's mother is a well-known Swedish actress.
- Greta was only nine when she first learned about the climate crisis.
- She was also diagnosed with a mild form of autism.
- Fridays for future is another name for the school strikes.
- There were 5 million protesters striking on September, 20, 2019.
- Greta won an essay writing competition when she was 15.
- Greta became very popular on social media.

4 Answer the following questions according to the text.

- What happened to Greta when she learned about the climate crisis?
- What helped her overcome this problem?
- What colours does Greta say she sees in? Is this positive or negative?
- What does Fridays for Future mean?
- How many strikes were held in the Global Week for Future?

SPEAKING

1 Imagine you participate in a school debate club on the topic Climate Change. Debate the following questions:

- Some people say that climate change is simply part of a natural cycle and is not man-made. What do you think?
- Do you believe we can stop climate change? What should be done?
- Could climate change threaten life on Earth? Discuss both scenarios: the best and the worst.

2 Read the two articles about the activities organised by different schools on Environmental Awareness Day. What activities could your school organise to celebrate this day?

A. Plumpton High School

This school decided to arrange a variety of activities, some aimed at achieving a better understanding of environmental problems and others designed to be of practical help. For instance, the school magazine brought out a special edition on the subject, full of articles and stories in which pupils expressed their feelings about the threats facing the environment. In another attempt to find out for themselves how serious these threats really are, the pupils decided to study the problem of pollution by conducting a survey, run by the Science Department, on air pollution in the local shopping centre. On the practical side, the school held a sponsored walk and donated £750 to the World Wildlife Fund. Pupils launched a campaign to ban cars from the city centre and reduce traffic congestion. They cycled through the city, handing out brochures about the benefits of cycling and walking. This created a lot of publicity for the school.

B. Smithsonian Institute

Although the school had already participated in some environmental projects, it naturally stepped up their efforts for Environmental Awareness Day. For the last two years, the school has been studying the effects of changes in climatic patterns around the world and how they can affect wildlife. The whole school watched a film about whales, those magnificent marine mammals, as part of Environmental Awareness Day and the pupils responded with great enthusiasm. We invited Meredith Summers, an architect, to discuss the destructive effects of pollution on historic buildings in the region. Following that, students decided to launch a campaign for the restoration of the medieval square in the city centre and asked local authorities to support them financially.

3 Work in pairs. For questions a-h, choose the schools described in Ex. 2.

- Became well known after Environmental Awareness Day?
- Raised money to help wildlife?
- Is studying changes in general weather conditions?
- Asked pupils to write about environmental problems?
- Arranged a talk on pollution and local architecture?
- Encouraged the use of bicycles?
- Decided to protect a local historical site?
- Carefully examined air pollution in a local area?

GRAMMAR

Zero Conditional

The zero conditional refers to things which are real and possible. They also refer to a time which is always or now. The zero conditional is made of two clauses: the conditional clause and the main or result clause.

The structure:

If + Present Simple, Present Simple

If it rains, the ground gets wet. or The ground gets wet if it rains.

- ✓ The zero conditional for facts: If you heat water to 100°C, it boils.
- ✓ The zero conditional for things that are always or usually true: If it's sunny, I eat lunch in the park.
- ✓ The present continuous in the zero conditional: If the dog's eating, we don't touch him.
- ✓ Imperatives with the zero conditional: When the water is boiling, add the pasta.
- ✓ Modal verbs in the zero conditional: You shouldn't smoke if you want to be healthy.

1 Make sentences using the zero conditional.

- (I / wake up late / I / be late for work)
- (my husband / cook / he / burn the food)
- (Julie / not wear a hat / she / get sunstroke)
- (children / not eat well / they / not be healthy)
- (you / mix water and electricity / you / get a shock)
- (people / eat / too many sweets / they / get fat)
- (you / smoke / you / get yellow fingers)
- (children / play outside / they / not get overweight)
- (you / heat ice / it / melt)
- (I / speak to John / he / get annoyed)

2 Use the correct form of the verbs in brackets.

- If it (rain) ... , plants cannot grow.
- If I (try) ... to cook, I ruin the food.
- I feel good if you (call) ... me regularly.
- Water evaporates if you (boil) ... it.
- Jane (cycle) ... to work if the weather is good.
- I feel sick if I (eat) ... too much before sleep.
- If Mike (go) ... to bed late, he cannot wake up early.

WRITING

1 Write a monologue about a specific climate change issue, such as climate anxiety, climate migration, national security concerns, sea level rise or species extinctions. Present it to the class.

2 Prepare for a role-play as a journalist or scientist in an interview simulation. The "journalist" will interview the "climate scientist" on different topics related to climate change, based on their research. You might include the following topics: hurricanes, sea level rise, melting Arctic ice, melting glaciers, wildfires or drought.

3 Write a 2-minute speech as if you were a world leader at the United Nations General Assembly. The best speech will be published by the school newspaper or other publications.

The Living Earth

LEAD-IN

1 Match the animals with their habitats. Provide other examples you already know.

mountains	bears
grasslands	penguins
polar regions	bison
rainforest	camels
desert	whales
marine	jaguars

2 Describe at least three different habitats and explain how each habitat meets the needs of the animals living there. Why are habitats important?

Example:

Habitat: Deserts

Describe: Dry, sandy terrain with little rainfall.

Animal example: Camels, which store water in their bodies and are adapted to hot, dry conditions.

A habitat is the natural home of a specific animal or plant species. Animals or plant species live in a particular habitat because this environment provides them with everything they need to survive, grow and reproduce. This means a species' habitat is the place where it can find food, water, air and protection.

LISTENING

1 Listen to a conversation between an environmental expert and a student. Answer the questions below:

- What is the main topic of the conversation?
- What does biodiversity mean?
- How is biodiversity measured?
- Why is biodiversity important for ecosystems?
- Can you list some of the benefits of biodiversity for humans mentioned in the conversation?
- What human activities contribute to the loss of biodiversity?
- What actions can be taken to protect biodiversity, according to the expert?
- Why is conserving biodiversity important for the future of the planet?

2 Listen to the conversation again. Say whether the following statements are true or false.

- The term biodiversity was introduced in 1988 by the English entomologist Edward O. Wilson.
- Biodiversity includes all species of plants, animals, fungi and microorganisms.
- Biodiversity is compared to a thermometer that measures the health of life on Earth.
- Deforestation, pollution and global warming are not related to human activities.
- Reducing the use of pesticides can promote friendly environment and sustainable agriculture.

READING

1 Read the text. Find out what impact climate change has on the Antarctic ecosystem and the animals that depend on sea ice.

Is Antarctica Losing Its Penguins?

Antarctica, the southernmost continent, is the coldest, driest and windiest place on Earth. This frozen continent is too harsh for humans, but it is home to penguins, seals, whales and other strong creatures. These animals rely on sea ice to survive.

Unfortunately, climate change affects Antarctica more than most other places. As air and water surface temperatures increase, sea ice melts. This causes many marine mammals and seabirds to lose their habitat and food sources, including Adelie penguins.

Adelie penguins live on the Antarctic continent and the surrounding coastal islands. They gather on rocky shores where they build nests and lay eggs. The main food source for Adelie penguins is Antarctic krill. Krill are small shrimp-like crustaceans that form the base of the Antarctic food web.

However, climate change and increasing temperatures make the sea ice formation very unreliable in the Southern Ocean. As a result, krill populations, as well as krill-dependent Adelie penguin populations are decreasing rapidly. In fact, the number of Adelie penguins in the Antarctic Peninsula is less than half of what it was in the 1970s.

If climate change continues at its current rate, scientists predict even warmer temperatures and less sea ice in Antarctica's future. How will this affect Adelie penguins in the region? Will they disappear?

Scientists have conducted several studies and identified three possible scenarios.

Pessimistic scenario: If survival conditions worsen (less sea ice, less krill) and the probability of "poor" years increases, then the chance that the colony will disappear increases significantly.

No change scenario will occur when conditions remain constant and the probability of "poor" years aligns with historical data:

- ✓ The colony is expected to experience a 50% decline over the next 30 years. This is the endangered species threshold determined by the International Union of Conservation of Nature (IUCN).

- ✓ There is a high risk that the colony will decline by 80% and reach critically endangered species threshold.
- ✓ There is a lesser but significant risk that the colony will decline more than 90% and reach the quasi-extinction threshold.

Optimistic scenario: If conditions improve and the probability of "poor" years decreases, the penguin population is likely to recover.

The data on survival and reproduction show how rising temperatures and loss of sea ice impact the Antarctic food chain and can cause major declines in penguin populations.

If this model applies to all the other Adelie penguin colonies in the Antarctic Peninsula, then we might lose most Adelie penguins in the very near future.

Adelie penguins are a key component of the Antarctic ecosystem. They keep krill and fish populations under control, exchange marine and terrestrial nutrients and are also an important food source for many marine mammals. Losing Adelie penguins would weaken the ecosystem and make it less resilient to further disturbances such as warmer temperatures. We urgently need to increase our conservation efforts to save this important species.

SPEAKING

1 Analyse the infographic that presents a list of endangered species. In groups, choose two species and discuss them.

A. For each species, gather information about the following:

- | | |
|-------------------|------------------------|
| ✓ scientific name | ✓ conservation efforts |
| ✓ habitat | ✓ interesting facts |
| ✓ threats | |

B. Reflect why conservation of endangered species is important. How can individuals contribute to conservation efforts?

C. Share your thoughts with the class.

2 In groups, discuss the relationship between biodiversity and human well-being. Consider the following areas:

- Ecosystem services: How biodiversity contributes to clean air, water, food and climate regulation.
- Health benefits: The role of biodiversity in preventing diseases, improving mental health and providing medicinal resources.
- Cultural and economic value: How biodiversity is integral to cultural practices, tourism and livelihoods.
- Threats to biodiversity: How the loss of biodiversity can negatively impact human life and economies. Provide examples.

6 Correct the statements.

- Antarctica is a northern continent.
- Penguins, seals and whales do not rely on sea ice.
- The main food of Adelie penguins is fish.
- The Krill population is increasing in the Southern Ocean.
- After several studies by scientists, there is only one possible scenario.
- The major decline in penguin populations is caused by strong winds.
- Loosing Adelie penguins would strengthen the Arctic ecosystem.

7 Answer the following questions:

- Why is Antarctica considered one of the most extreme places on Earth?
- What is the primary food source for Adelie penguins?
- How does climate change affect the sea ice in the Southern Ocean?
- How does the loss of sea ice affect Adelie penguin populations in Antarctica?
- Why is the loss of Adelie penguins a threat to the Antarctic ecosystem?
- What actions can be taken to protect Adelie penguins and other species in Antarctica from the effects of climate change?

GRAMMAR

Conditional Sentences (Type 1)

Use: Conditional Sentences Type I is used to express real or possible situations.

It shows that if a certain condition happens (present situation), a future result will occur. We don't know whether the condition actually will be fulfilled or not, but the conditions seem rather realistic, so we think it is likely to happen.

Example: If I find her address, I'll send her an invitation.

Structure

If + present simple, will + base verb (main clause)

Sometimes, modal verbs (such as can, may, might, must) can replace will in the main clause. The structure remains the same: If + present simple, modal verb + base verb.

Examples: If you study hard, you can improve your grades.

If they arrive early, they might catch the beginning of the show.

1 Continue the sentences using the first conditional.

- a. If it is sunny,
- b. If I study hard, ...
- c. If I save money,
- d. If I have some free time this weekend, ...
- e. If they arrive early, ...

2 Match the halves.

1. If you send this letter now,
 2. If I do this test,
 3. If I find your ring,
 4. Peggy will go shopping
 5. Simon will go to London next week
 6. If her boyfriend does not phone today,
 7. If they do not study harder,
 8. If it rains tomorrow,
 9. You will not be able to sleep
 10. Susan cannot move into the new house
- A. if it is not ready on time.
 - B. if you watch this scary film.
 - C. I will not have to water the plants.
 - D. they will not pass the exam.
 - E. she will leave him.
 - F. if he gets a cheap flight.
 - G. if she has time in the afternoon.
 - H. I will give it back to you.
 - I. I will improve my English.
 - J. she will receive it tomorrow.

3 Write the correct form of the verbs using the first conditional.

- a. If she ... (invite) me, I ... (go)
- b. If it ... (rain), we ... (cancel) the match.
- c. If I ... (get) a promotion, I ... (buy) a car.
- d. If she ... (be late), we ... (go) without her.
- e. If you ... (ask) more politely, I ... (buy) you a drink.
- f. If you ... (not behave), I ... (throw) you out.
- g. If he ... (win) the first prize, his mother ... (be) happy.
- h. If he ... (get) proper medical care, he ... (survive)
- i. If the drought ... (continue), plants and animals ... (perish).

WRITING

1 In about 150 words, write an article for a school magazine explaining why it is important to conserve plants and animals. When writing, consider the following:

- a. Briefly describe why plants and animals are an important part of our world.
- b. Explain how plants and animals help people, animals and the environment.
- c. Describe the threats that plants and animals face.
- d. Explain why it is important to protect plants and animals. What happens if they disappear?
- e. End your article by saying what people can do to help conserve plants and animals. Give a few simple suggestions.

- How big is it?
- Are there animals in the park?
- Are there any recreational activities?
- What is the park renowned for?
- How often do you go to the park?
- What do you like doing there?

2 Look at the pictures. Discuss the questions:

- Which place would you most like to visit and why?
- What do you think makes these places so special? Why?
- What kind of activities do you think people can do in these parks?

| 1. Yellowstone National Park | A. A type of park managed at a local level, often near cities. |
| 2. National Parks | B. The first national park in the world, established in 1872. |
| 3. Regional Parks | C. Parks that are large, protected areas managed by the national government. |
| 4. The „Big Five” | D. Lions, elephants, rhinos, leopards and buffaloes are found in parks like Kruger. |

4 In groups, discuss the questions.

- | | |
|--|---|
| a. Why do you think it was important to establish national parks like Yellowstone? | c. Have you ever visited a national or regional park? What did you enjoy most about it? |
| b. What do you think are some of the challenges of managing national parks compared to regional parks? | d. How can people help protect parks when they visit? |

1 Read the two texts. Say where the parks are located. What type of parks are they?

Located in the Rocky Mountains near Estes Park, Colorado, Rocky Mountain National Park has attracted nature lovers and adventure seekers since it was officially established by President Woodrow Wilson in 1915. This iconic national park offers breathtaking views in all directions, making it a must-visit destination for families, hikers and outdoor enthusiasts.

For families with young children, the park offers several kid-friendly hiking trails, such as Lily Lake, Sprague Lake and Bear Lake. These trails are easy to navigate and provide stunning scenery and opportunities to spot local wildlife. Young explorers can also participate in the Junior Ranger program, designed to educate and engage children with hands-on activities about nature and conservation.

Rocky Mountain National Park is not only a summer destination; it transforms into a winter wonderland when the snow arrives. In winter, visitors can go sledding or tubing in the Hidden Valley area, which features the perfect hills for sliding down the snow. Once a ski area, Hidden Valley remains a favourite spot for families looking to enjoy winter activities in a beautiful mountain setting.

Located in Renfrewshire, Scotland, Muirshiel Country Park is one of Scotland's hidden gems, offering a rich variety of landscapes and activities for visitors to enjoy. The park spans across rolling moorlands, scenic woodlands and peaceful lochs, creating a tranquil setting perfect for relaxation and exploration.

One of the highlights of Muirshiel is its wildlife. The park is home to rare species, including the hen harrier, a protected bird of prey that nests in the moorlands. For those interested in birdwatching, Muirshiel provides viewing platforms and information boards to help visitors spot these remarkable birds in their natural habitat. The park also features roe deer, otters and a variety of other animals, making it a paradise for nature enthusiasts.

The park has walking and hiking trails appropriate for all fitness levels. The Windy Hill trail, one of the most popular routes, leads to a breathtaking panoramic viewpoint overlooking the Clyde Muirshiel Regional Park. There are also shorter trails, perfect for families with young children or those seeking a leisurely stroll through the woodland.

In addition to its natural beauty, Muirshiel Country Park has a fascinating history. Remnants of old barytes mines, which date back to the early 20th century can be seen in the park. Guided tours and interpretive signs provide insight into the history of mining in the area and its impact on the local community.

For visitors interested in educational experiences, the Muirshiel Visitor Centre offers interactive exhibits about the park's wildlife, geology, and conservation efforts. The center also provides information on upcoming events, such as guided walks, birdwatching sessions and seasonal activities, making it a great starting point for any visit.

2 In the texts, find the words and word combinations that match these definitions:

- a. A high, flat area often covered with grass and shrubs (starts with „m”).
- b. The time when children or adults slide down snowy hills for fun (starts with „s”).
- c. A rare type of bird mentioned in Muirshiel Country Park (word combination, starts with „h”).
- d. The place where you can learn more about wildlife and conservation in Muirshiel (word combination, starts with „v”).
- e. A program designed to teach kids about nature (word combination, starts with „j”).

- Rocky Mountain National Park was established by President Woodrow Wilson in 1915.
- Muirshiel Country Park is located in the United States.
- Lilly Lake is a kid-friendly hiking trail in Muirshiel Country Park.
- The Junior Ranger program is for teaching children about nature.
- Visitors can see hen harriers in Rocky Mountain National Park.

5 Match the features below to the correct park (Rocky Mountain National Park or Muirshiel Country Park).

- Offers sledding and tubing activities in winter.
- Features old barytes mines and guided tours about mining history.
- Is located in Scotland.
- Has a Junior Ranger program for children.
- Includes the Windy Hill trail with panoramic views.

6 Work in groups. Each group focuses on a text. Read the information about their assigned park. Write five questions about the park. Address these questions to the other group. Discuss what you learned about the parks.

Introductory Subjects "There" and "It"

We usually use "there" as an introductory subject with a noun or a noun phrase and the verb "be". It is often used to introduce new information or say that something exists.

Structure: There + verb (be) + subject + additional information.

Examples: There is a coffee shop next to the station.

There was a boy in the car.

We can use "there" with any tense of "be", including a modal verb + be.

Example: There might be cake at the party.

We use "it" as an introductory subject. "It" is used to introduce something that has already been mentioned, describe the weather, time, or distance, or act as a placeholder subject before the real subject appears. "It" tends to be followed by an adjective rather than a noun phrase.

"It" is used with "be" + adj. + to + infinitive.

Example: It is nice to be here

It is sunny in the Rocky Mountains.

1 Fill in the blanks with "there" or "it":

- ... is a Junior Ranger program for children in the park.
- ... was raining when we started hiking.
- ... are many trails to choose from.
- ... is a 15-minute walk to the visitor center.
- ... is a great place for birdwatching.
- ... is nothing to eat.
- ... is great to meet you.
- ... might be some money in the drawer.
- ... were flowers all over the hills.

2 Fill in the sentences with there and it. Use the correct form of the verbs in brackets.

- ... (be) an hour since I ordered my lunch.
- ... (be) a lot of improvement in the quality of our products.
- ... (be) hard for him to find a job.
- ... (be) a pleasure to have you as my guest.
- ... (be) very cold today; ... (be) snowing all night.
- ... (be) amazing to be the first person to discover this cave.
- ... (not take) you too long to finish the report.

3 Correct the sentences using it or there.

- It are many animals in the park.
- There is sunny today.
- There is important to bring water on long hikes.
- It was a picnic area near the visitor center.
- There is cold in the mountains during winter.

WRITING

1 Think of a place you have visited, read about or imagined. Write a short story using the introductory there and it.

- Begin your story with a sentence introducing the place using „there”:
Example: There was a peaceful lake surrounded by tall trees.
- Describe the activities, animals, or scenery using „it” and „there” appropriately:
Example: It was sunny and warm, perfect for hiking.
- End your story with the sentence: It was the most amazing place in the world.

2 Choose one national park from the United States that you like.

- Create a lapbook, exploring the beauty and the interesting facts of the park. Include the following:
 - ✓ A title page with the name of the park.
 - ✓ A section for the park's history.
 - ✓ A section for interesting facts and important events.
 - ✓ A section for your map of the United States, showing the state and park's location.
 - ✓ Any additional creative sections such as animal or plant life in the park.
- On the inside of your lapbook, write a 150-words description. Explain your choice. Highlight its unique features, attractions, and what makes it stand out from other national parks.

From Grey to Green

LEAD-IN

1 Have you ever wondered what life would be like a few years from now? Read the predictions. Underline the key facts and figures. Discuss them. Consider the following questions:

- How realistic do they seem?
- What measures should cities take to address these issues?
- What is the role of individuals in creating greener urban environments?

By 2050 68% of the global population is expected to live in cities. That's 2.5 billion more people than today. In Europe, three out of four people already live in urban areas. Researchers estimate that nine million people die every year as a direct result of air pollution. In London, two million people, including 400,000 children, live in areas with toxic air.

Research shows clearly that we need nature in our surroundings. We need trees in our streets, plants in our gardens and flowers on our balcony. We need nature as our neighbour at all times.

2 In groups, reflect on how incorporating nature into our daily lives can positively impact our health. Continue the list below. For each point, provide specific examples of how nature contributes to that benefit.

- Promoting physical health
- Enhancing mental well-being
- Encouraging social interaction

Example:

Physical health: Walking or jogging in parks improves cardiovascular fitness.

LISTENING

1 You will be listening to an article about one of the greatest parks in London. Answer the questions below.

- Where is Hyde Park located?
- What activities can you enjoy on Serpentine Lake?
- Name one historical landmark in Hyde Park.
- What recreational activities are available on the park's lawns?
- What sports can you play in Hyde Park?
- What popular outdoor activity involves guided rides through the park?
- What types of events and festivals does Hyde Park host?
- What is the significance of the Speakers' Corner?

- How far back does the tradition of the Speakers' Corner date?
- How does Hyde Park contribute to the city's atmosphere?

2 In pairs, discuss the questions below.

- What is your favorite park in your city/town/village? Why do you like it?
- How often do you visit parks? What do you usually do there?
- What kind of activities can people do in the parks in your city/town/village?
- Are there any famous landmarks or attractions in the parks near you?
- Are there any sports or fitness facilities available in the parks?
- How do parks in your city/town/village help the environment? How do they improve the quality of life?
- Do parks in your city/town/village host any events or festivals? If yes, which ones?
- If you could design a park for your city/town/village, what features would you include?

1 Read the text. Explain the title of the text.

The Ever-Changing Role of City Parks

City parks have long been cherished as essential parts of urban life. From the serene paths of Hyde Park in London to the expansive greenery of Central Park in New York City, these spaces offer much more than just a patch of grass in the midst of a bustling city.

Historically, parks have served as venues for public gatherings, relaxation and recreation. Today, they face new challenges and opportunities as urban areas become more densely populated and complex. Urban planners and architects now view parks as indispensable to sustainable city living. For instance, Singapore's Gardens by the Bay combines cutting-edge technology with natural beauty, showcasing futuristic "Supertrees" that promote biodiversity and help regulate the climate. Similarly, Paris has introduced "pocket parks" in small, unused urban spaces, offering green escapes in crowded neighbourhoods.

Famous parks often illustrate how green spaces can reflect a city's unique identity. For example, Tokyo's Ueno Park features museums and cherry blossoms, offering cultural enrichment alongside natural beauty. Meanwhile, Cape Town's Kirstenbosch National Botanical Garden highlights local flora, creating a deep connection between nature and national pride.

Parks are also adapting to modern health and environmental needs. In Copenhagen, for example, urban parks are designed with flood-resilient landscapes, that manage excess rainwater while providing recreational areas.

In addition, medical research increasingly highlights the mental health benefits of spending time in nature, leading cities like Melbourne to promote "green prescriptions" for stress relief.

As cities evolve, so do their parks. From high-tech innovations like New York's High Line, a park built on an old railway line, to the preservation of cultural and historical landscapes, urban parks are dynamic spaces that meet the changing needs of their communities. By combining tradition with innovation, these green spaces will continue to thrive, playing a vital role in the urban environments of the future.

2 Match the words and word combinations in the Vocabulary Corner box with their definitions.

- To hold something or someone dear, showing great affection, care or respect.
- Small parks in unused urban spaces.
- Recommendations by healthcare professionals for patients to spend time in nature, such as parks or forests, as part of treatment for improving mental and physical health.
- The latest and most advanced stage in the development of something, especially technology or innovation.
- Natural elements incorporated into urban areas.
- A small area of land or a section of something, often distinct from its surroundings (e.g., a patch of grass).

3 Complete the sentences using the words and word combinations in the Vocabulary Corner Box.

- A small ... of wildflowers grew in the corner of the park, adding a splash of color to the green lawn.
- The new office building incorporates , featuring an indoor garden and large windows to bring in natural light.
- The ... playground equipment in the park uses advanced technology to make it accessible for children with disabilities.
- Doctors in the city have started giving , encouraging patients to spend time walking in parks to reduce stress and improve overall health.
- The city council redesigned an abandoned lot into a beautiful with benches and flowerbeds for the community to enjoy.
- Many people ... childhood memories of playing in their neighborhood park.

4 Read the statements below. Decide whether they are true or false. Correct the false ones.

- City parks have always been used only for relaxation.
- Biophilic design integrates natural elements into urban planning.
- Singapore's Gardens by the Bay features "Supertrees" that help regulate the climate.
- Cape Town's Kirstenbosch Garden highlights global plant species.
- It is difficult for architects to adapt parks to modern environmental needs.
- In the past, parks served as venues for public gatherings, relaxation and recreation.

5 In the text, find synonyms for the words below. Write sentences using them.

- | | |
|-------------|---------------|
| a. lively | d. crowded |
| b. peaceful | e. to develop |
| c. green | f. surplus |

SPEAKING

1 In groups, discuss the questions. Share your thoughts with your classmates.

- Why do you think parks are considered "urban lungs"?
- How might technology enhance the functionality of the parks in the future?
- Do you agree that parks should be a priority in urban planning? Why yes? Why not?

2 With a partner, take turns asking and answering the questions below to describe a park or garden in your community. Use complete sentences. Include as many details as possible.

- Where is the park or garden located?
- Are there any famous landmarks or places nearby?
- What transportation options are available to reach the park?
- How long does it take to get there?
- Do you visit this park often or only on special occasions?
- How long do you usually stay there?
- What features do you love about the park?
- Do you have any memorable experiences within the park?

3 There are many ways cities can create sustainable green spaces. From the list provided, choose the options you think are easy to implement in your community. Which of them might be more challenging?

- Analyse the list of sustainable green space ideas.
- Rank the ideas from the easiest to the most challenging.
- Discuss why some ideas might be easier or more difficult to implement in your area.
- For each idea, write 1-2 sentences explaining your reasoning.

4 As a group, choose one idea that would benefit your community. Brainstorm specific steps to implement it. Identify possible challenges and solutions.

- ✓ Planting trees along streets and in parks;
- ✓ Creating community gardens for local food production;
- ✓ Building rooftop gardens on schools and office buildings;
- ✓ Designing pocket parks in unused urban areas;
- ✓ Installing vertical gardens on building walls;
- ✓ Using recycled materials for park benches and pathways;

Disjunctive Questions

Disjunctive questions, also known as tag questions, are short questions added at the end of a statement to confirm information or seek agreement. They are often used in conversation to engage the listener.

Structure:

A disjunctive question consists of two parts: a main statement and a question tag.

If the main statement is positive, the tag is negative.

If the main statement is negative, the tag is positive.

Examples: She's coming to the party, isn't she?

He isn't home yet, is he?

✓ Tense Agreement:

The verb in the tag matches the tense and form (e.g., auxiliary verb) of the main clause.

Examples: They were at the park, weren't they?

You haven't seen my keys, have you?

✓ Modal Verbs:

If the main statement includes a modal verb, the same modal verb is used in the tag.

Example: You can swim, can't you?

✓ Imperatives:

For commands or requests, use will you, won't you, or can you in the tag.

Examples: Close the door, will you?

Help me with this, won't you?

✓ Intonation:

Rising intonation is used when asking for confirmation or information.

Falling intonation is used when expecting agreement.

You don't know where my wallet is,	do you?	/ rising	real question
It's a beautiful view,	isn't it?	\ falling	not a real question

1 Add the tag question.

- You're coming to the meeting, ... ?
- The movie was great, ... ?
- I shouldn't eat more cake, ... ?
- She's from a small town in China, ... ?
- They aren't on their way already, ... ?
- We're late again, ... ?
- I'm not the person with the tickets, ... ?
- Julie isn't an accountant, ... ?
- The weather is really bad today, ... ?
- He's very handsome, ... ?
- They aren't in Japan at the moment, ... ?
- You aren't from Brazil, ... ?
- John's a very good student, ... ?
- The dog is hungry, ... ?

2 Each sentence below has an incorrect question tag.

Rewrite the sentence using the correct tag.

- You're tired, isn't it?
- She won't come to the meeting, will she not?
- They didn't enjoy the trip, don't they?
- Let's go for a walk, will you?
- I'm the best person for the job, am I not?

3 Take turns asking your partner questions with tags to confirm information. Use topics such as favourite food, music, or sport, their weekend plans or recent experiences.

Example: You've been to the new cafe downtown, haven't you?

Structure

Opening (Introduction):

- ✓ Address the letter formally: Dear [City Council].
- ✓ Introduce yourself and state the purpose of your letter.
Example: I am writing to express my concern about the decision to replace our local park with a shopping center.

Main Body (3 Paragraphs):

- ✓ Write three reasons to support your argument. Each reason should be in a separate paragraph. Consider the following:
 - Environmental impact
 - Community benefits of the park
 - Negative effects of a shopping center

Closing:

- ✓ Politely urge the council to reconsider their decision.
Example: I urge the council to reconsider this decision for the benefit of the environment and the community.
- ✓ End with: Yours sincerely, [Your Name].

WRITING

1 Imagine that your local park is at risk of being replaced by a shopping center. Write a letter to your city council to convince them not to demolish the local park. Explain why the park is important to your community and why it should be preserved.

Are You a Green Tourist?

LEAD-IN

- 1 In pairs, ask and answer the questions below.
 - a. Do you enjoy travelling? If so, what makes travelling exciting for you?
 - b. What places have you visited recently that left a lasting impression on you?
 - c. In your opinion, who can be considered a “green tourist”?
 - d. Do you think being a green tourist is challenging? Why yes? Why not?
 - e. Have you ever tried eco-friendly accommodations or activities during your travels? How was the experience?
- 2 Match the following types of tourism with their descriptions and characteristics. Which of them have you ever experienced? Which would you like to try? Why?

Types of tourism	Description	Characteristics
Adventure tourism	Visiting rural areas or farms to learn about agriculture, enjoy farm activities and experience countryside life.	Provides learning opportunities. Includes visits to historical landmarks, museums, cultural workshops or academic institutions.
Green tourism	Engaging in activities related to the sea.	Farm visits, agricultural activities, sustainable farming practices. Focuses on relaxation and connecting with nature in a rural setting.
Agrotourism	Environmentally responsible travel that focuses on conserving natural resources and supporting sustainability.	Focuses on physical activities, risk-taking, and adrenaline-pumping experiences: hiking, kayaking, mountain biking, environmental stewardship. Takes place in remote, natural or rugged environments.
Educational tourism	Thrilling outdoor activities such as mountain climbing, zip-lining, bungee jumping or trekking in challenging landscapes.	Prioritizes sustainability, environmental conservation and minimizing ecological footprints. Promotes eco-friendly accommodations and practices
Marine tourism	Traveling with the purpose of learning.	Offers wildlife experiences like whale watching or coral reef visits. Revolves around ocean-based activities such as: snorkeling, scuba diving, boating, marine ecosystem protection.

- 3 From the list below, tick the benefits of the green tourism. Choose three benefits and explain how they contribute to environmental sustainability and support the well-being of local communities.
 - a. Reduction of carbon footprint
 - b. Preservation of natural resources
 - c. Increased pollution levels
 - d. Support for local economies
 - e. Loss of biodiversity
 - f. Promotion of sustainable travel practices
 - g. Overcrowding of natural parks
 - h. Protection of wildlife habitats
 - i. Deterioration of cultural heritage

LISTENING

- 1 Read the sentences below. Decide whether they are true or false.
 - a. Ecotourism is only about protecting the environment.
 - b. Costa Rica has many protected areas, like Corcovado National Park.
 - c. Slovenia has no protected land.
 - d. Norway works hard to protect its natural beauty.
 - e. The Green Label shows that a service or hotel is harmful to the environment.

- d. Slovenia is known for its beautiful ... and

READING

1 Look at the three types of holidays below. For each type, write a short description of the activities people usually do during that type of holiday.

- a. Adventure holidays
- b. Cultural holidays
- c. Relaxing holidays

3 Read the text. Answer the ending question.

2 In pairs, discuss your favourite type of holiday. Explain why you enjoy it. When discussing consider the following:

- a. Do you like being with lots of other people or just a few friends or family members?
- b. Do you prefer staying in a big resort, a small hotel or camping?
- c. Do you go on holiday to “get away from it all” or to have fun?

3 Answer the questions based on the dialogue.

- a. What is ecotourism?
- b. Why is it important to travel responsibly?
- c. What countries were mentioned by the tourist consultant in the interview?
- d. Which country has limited its visitors by imposing a guide while visiting?
- e. How many percent of land is Slovenia covered by forests?
- f. What eco-activities can be practiced in Norway?

Tourists Paradise

Coconut Island used to be a peaceful, tropical paradise with coconut trees, golden beaches and a clear, blue sea. I apologise for the mistake I made there. While the island still has coconut palms, golden sand and clear water, it has changed a lot compared to how it was before. So, what exactly happened?

The beach is now crowded with tourists, sunbeds and umbrellas. The sea is filled with speedboats, noisy jet skis and surfers. The number of palm trees has decreased due to constant construction. Now Coconut Island is full of hotels, resorts, guest houses, restaurants and swimming pools. The paradise I remember is gone, but the Paradise Hotel is now under constant development.

Am I the only one who feels this way? The tourists look happy; the weather is perfect, the food is delicious and affordable and the sea is warm. The locals seem content too. There are plenty of street vendors, more jobs and improved roads. The developers are certainly satisfied with all the construction going on. So, why do I feel unhappy?

A friend of mine visited this place five years ago. Her photo album is filled with stunning pictures of empty beaches. She also has photos of simple wooden bungalows right on the beach. She told me there was no need to book; you just arrived and had the whole place to yourself: cheap and peaceful.

That's not the case anymore! The beach is crowded all day long with loud music playing in the background. Children can be heard shouting from the cafes while the hotels are incredibly expensive. Most of the hotels are full with tourists who made reservations months in advance. I'm lucky to have a small room at the back of one hotel and even that is expensive.

But maybe this is all part of progress. Not only are the roads better, but there's now a medical clinic. The local children speak English: “Mister, mister, want a t-shirt?” and new businesses are popping up everywhere.

Then, I watch an old woman trying to cross the road from her home to the shops. It used to be a quiet road, but now it's busy and stressful. She looks nervous and waits for someone to walk with her. The children no longer ride bikes, but instead race around on motorbikes. It doesn't feel very safe. My friend once stayed in a beachfront bungalow that had no lock. The hotel now advises guests to store their valuables in a safe box. So, is this progress?

4 Match the words in the Vocabulary Corner box with the following definitions:

- A small house made of wood, usually on the beach or near water.
- A state of being crowded with people.
- Something that is not expensive.
- A strip of land along a beach.
- To appear or happen, especially suddenly or unexpectedly.

Vocabulary Corner

beachfront packed bungalow to pop up affordable

5 Replace the underlined words with their synonyms. Use the Vocabulary Corner Box.

- We stayed in a cosy cottage by the lake for the weekend.
- The store offers reasonably priced clothing that fits all budgets.
- The hotel is located right on the seafront, offering beautiful views of the ocean.
- The restaurant was so crowded that we had to wait for a table.
- New coffee shops continue to appear in the city center every month.

6 Discuss the following questions based on the text:

- What did Coconut Island look like when the writer first visited it?
- How has the beach on Coconut Island changed over time?
- What types of activities and things are now commonly found on the beach?
- How does the writer feel about these changes? Why?
- What memories does the writer have from a friend's visit to the island five years ago?
- What does the writer observe about the local children on the island?
- Do the locals seem happy with the changes? Why yes? Why not?
- How does the writer describe the safety on the island now?

SPEAKING

1 In pairs, discuss the questions. Report your answers to the class.

- Do you think it's good for a place to develop or should it stay small and quiet? Why?
- What are some benefits of tourism and development for local people? What are the disadvantages?
- Have you ever visited a place that changed a lot over time? How did it make you feel?
- What would you do if you were the writer? Would you be happy or unhappy about the changes on Coconut Island?
- What kind of holiday do you prefer: peaceful and quiet or busy and lively? Explain why.

2 Work in pairs. One person will take the role of a travel journalist, and the other will play the role of a responsible tourist who has just returned from a trip. Roleplay a conversation. Use the vocabulary words provided.

- ✓ package holidays
- ✓ visiting exotic locations
- ✓ responsible tourism/tourist
- ✓ local customs
- ✓ clean up
- ✓ throw away the rubbish
- ✓ look after
- ✓ natural environments
- ✓ encourage conservation
- ✓ pay a special tax

GRAMMAR

Conditional Type 2

Conditional Type 2 is used to talk about hypothetical or unreal situations in the present or future. These situations are often unlikely or imaginary.

Examples: If I found her address, I would send her an invitation.

If John had the money, he would buy a Ferrari. (But he doesn't have money now.)

If I had more time, I would learn a new language. (But I don't have more time now.)

Structure

General Structure	Reversed Structure
If-clause (condition) + Main clause (result) If + Past Simple, would + Infinitive Example: If I had more money, I would travel the world.	Main clause (result) + If-clause (condition) would + Infinitive if + Past Simple Example: I would travel the world if I had more money.

The verb "to be":

In the if-clause, "were" is used for all subjects (instead of "was"), especially in formal contexts.

Example: If I were you, I would not behave this way.

1 Complete the sentences with the correct form of the verbs in brackets.

- If I ... (win) the lottery, I ... (buy) a new house.
- She ... (be) happier if she ... (live) in a warmer country.
- If we ... (have) more time, we ... (visit) you more often.
- They ... (travel) to Paris if flights ... (be) cheaper.
- If he ... (study) harder, he ... (get) better grades.
- If I ... (know) how to cook, I ... (prepare) dinner for you.
- She ... (be) happier if she ... (live) closer to her family.
- If we ... (not pollute) the environment, the Earth ... (be) healthier.
- They ... (visit) us if they ... (have) a car.
- If I ... (throw) rubbish in natural environments, they ... (harm) the wildlife.
- If you ... (be) a responsible tourist, you ... (respect) local customs.
- The beaches ... (look) cleaner if more people ... (clean up) after themselves.
- If I ... (know) about package holidays, I ... (book) one for my trip.

4 Match the parts of the sentences.

- If I looked after natural environments,
- If we encouraged conservation,
- If tourists paid a special tax,
- If locals explained their customs,
- If people threw away their rubbish,

2 Rewrite the sentences. Change them using the Conditional Type 2.

Example: I don't live near the beach, so I can't go swimming every day. → If I lived near the beach, I would go swimming every day.

- She doesn't speak French, so she can't work in France.
- We don't have a car, so we can't go on a road trip.
- He doesn't practice enough, so he can't play the piano well.
- I'm not rich, so I can't donate to charity.
- I don't have free time and I can't spend more time with his family.
- Our garden is small and we can't grow more vegetables.

3 Answer the following questions using the conditional Type 2.

- What would you do if you were rich?
- How would your life change if you lived in another country?
- If you only ate one food forever, which would it be?
- What would happen if you didn't have access to the Internet?
- What would you do if you could travel to the future?
- If you made one change to the world, what would it be?
- What would you do if school was cancelled today?

- the sea would be cleaner.
- I would understand their traditions better.
- it would protect wildlife.
- more projects could be funded.
- the world would be a better place.

WRITING

1 Imagine your friend is planning a holiday and has asked for your advice. Write an email to him or her using the structure below.

Structure:

- ✓ Greeting: Start your email with a friendly opening (e.g., Hi [Name],)
- ✓ Introduction: Mention that you are happy to give advice.
- ✓ Main Body:
 - Suggest a holiday destination.
 - Give advice about activities he or she could do there.
 - Give advice on how to be a responsible tourist while travelling.
- ✓ Closing: Wish him or her a great trip and invite him or her to ask more questions if needed.
- ✓ Sign-off: End your email politely (e.g., Best regards, Your Name)

READING COMPREHENSION

1 Read the text and accomplish the tasks that follow.

Climate Change

The weather is a common topic of conversation every day. It can change quickly, even in one day. For example, it might be sunny in the morning and rainy by the afternoon.

The climate, however, is different. It does not change every day or every month. Climate refers to the average weather conditions in a place over many years. For example, a desert has a hot and dry climate, while a rainforest is warm and humid. Some places, like mountains, can be cold all year.

Today, many people talk about climate change. This means the Earth is getting warmer. This is also called global warming. Why is this happening?

The Earth has gases in the air that act like a blanket. These are called greenhouse gases. They keep the Earth warm. However, now there are too many greenhouse gases, so the Earth is getting hotter. It is like putting on a very heavy blanket.

One of these gases is called carbon dioxide. Trees help the Earth by absorbing this gas and releasing oxygen. But when people cut down many trees, the problem gets worse.

A warmer Earth can cause serious problems. There can be more storms, heatwaves and floods. Animals like polar bears and seals are losing their homes because the ice is melting. Sea turtles are losing the beaches where they lay their eggs. Farmers in some countries have problems growing food.

In the past, the climate changed naturally. But in the last 200 years, scientists say that human activity has made the Earth warmer. If we change the way we live, we can help the Earth and slow down climate change.

2 Answer the questions according to the text.

- What is the difference between weather and climate?
- How is the climate in a rainforest different from a desert?
- What causes the Earth to get warmer?
- How do trees help with carbon dioxide?
- What can people do to help stop climate change?

3 Read the statements. Decide if they are true or false. Justify your choice.

- Climate usually changes over hundreds or thousands of years.
- Deserts are known for being cold and rainy.
- Cutting down trees can make the Earth's "blanket" thicker.
- A warmer Earth can cause unusual weather, like more storms and heatwaves.
- Greenhouse gases are harmful and do not help the Earth in any way.

4 Match the beginning of each sentence in Column A with the correct ending in Column B. One is extra.

Column A

- Weather can change...
- Climate is the average weather...
- Deserts have a hot...
- Greenhouse gases act like...
- Humans make the problem worse...
- A warmer Earth can mean...

Column B

- and dry climate.
- animals like polar bears lose their homes.
- quickly, even in one day.
- by cutting down too many trees.
- in one place over many years.
- global warming.
- a blanket to keep the Earth warm.

5 In the text, find words that match the definitions below.

- The condition of the air, such as sunny, rainy, or windy, on a specific day.
- An area with very little rain, usually hot and dry.
- A dense, tropical forest found in areas with high amounts of rainfall throughout the year.
- A large, soft piece of fabric used to cover and keep warm, especially while sleeping.
- A period of very high temperatures, hotter than normal for that time of year.

6 In the text, find synonyms for the following words:

- to preserve
- researcher

7 In the text, find antonyms for the following words:

- slowly
- light

8 In about 40-50 words, explain the following statement in your own words: "Climate change is the result of human behaviour."

VOCABULARY BUILDING

WRITING

1 You see this announcement in an international student magazine: "Don't miss your chance, publish an article!" In about 150 words, write an article on the topic: "Should we stop climate change or adapt to it?" The most interesting articles will be published in the magazine. Consider both sides of the issue and provide your opinion. When writing, consider the following:

- ✓ Introduce the topic and explain what climate change is.
- ✓ Discuss the importance of stopping climate change and the actions that can be taken.
- ✓ Explain the concept of adaptation and how it can help us deal with the consequences of climate change.
- ✓ Conclude with your personal opinion, balancing both perspectives.

Bringing Ideas to Life

Photocollage: Nature Through My Eyes

Go outside and capture the beauty and diversity of nature through photography. Express your personal connection with the natural world. Create a photocollage that tells a visual story of your unique perspective on nature.

Choose one or more of the following topics to explore in your photography:

- ✓ A funny-shaped cloud
- ✓ A spider web
- ✓ An animal
- ✓ A close-up of a flower
- ✓ A feather
- ✓ An animal track
- ✓ A tree
- ✓ A tree hollow

Collage Creation

- ✓ Take photos, create a photo-collage by combining your images into one presentation.
- ✓ Arrange your images creatively to tell a story or express the harmony between humans and nature.
- ✓ Consider how each image complements the others in colour, texture and theme.

Reflection

- ✓ Write a short reflection (150-180 words) describing your experience capturing nature through photography.
- ✓ Explain why you chose your theme(s) and how it reflects your personal connection with the natural world.
- ✓ Mention any challenges or surprises you encountered during your outdoor adventure.

Presentation

- ✓ Present your photocollage to the class.
- ✓ For each photo, express:
 - ✓ What drew your attention to the subject you photographed.
 - ✓ How the photo makes you feel (e.g., calm, inspired, curious, etc.).
 - ✓ Any interesting facts about the subject (e.g., why trees have hollow spaces or what animal tracks you found).

Criteria		Points
Content	The collage strongly reflects the chosen theme(s) and expresses a deep personal connection with nature.	4
Creativity & CompositionCreativity and Composition	The collage is exceptionally creative with a thoughtful arrangement of photos.	4
Language	Language is clear, concise, and well-crafted. The reflection is insightful and eloquent, fully conveying the personal connection to nature.	4
Layout and Design	The layout and design are visually pleasing and well-organized. The use of space, fonts, and image placement enhances the overall effect of the collage.	4
Presentation	The presentation is polished and professional, with attention to detail. It is clear, organised, engaging and drawing the viewer in.	4

City Living

LEAD-IN

- 1 Look at the pictures. In groups, discuss which place you would like to live in. Explain why. Share your reasons by considering factors such as the environment, lifestyle, facilities and local attractions.

- 2 Analyse the table below comparing life in the city and life in the village. Based on your knowledge and experiences, fill in the table with the advantages and disadvantages of both lifestyles for each category. Discuss the results with your classmates. Consider the following:
 - a. Which lifestyle do you personally prefer? Why?
 - b. What factors influence people's decisions to live in a city or a village?

Lifestyle	Facilities	Job Opportunities	Public Transportation	Social Life	Education	Healthcare
City Life
Country Life

- 3 Describe your street community using the vocabulary in the table below.

Street	Description words
Location and general atmosphere	in a city or suburb, quiet or busy, friendly
Houses	modern, traditional, well-maintained or older buildings
Neighbours	families, elderly people, or young professionals, helpful
Environment	tree-lined, clean, with parks, crowded with cars, nearby facilities (e.g., a park, grocery store, bus stop)
Community Activities	neighborhood gatherings, festivals, community meetings

LISTENING

1 Listen to a conversation between Mark and his sister.

Answer the following questions:

- How is Emma doing in the village?
- What kind of work does Emma do in the village?
- Why does Mark think life in the city is better than in the village?
- What does Emma enjoy about living in the village?
- What does Mark think he would miss about city life if he lived in the village?
- What do Mark and his sister plan to do next summer?

2 Read the statements. Decide whether they are true or false.

- Emma enjoys the fast pace of life in the village.
- Mark likes the convenience of living in the city, with lots of shops and activities.
- Emma has to travel far to get to the nearest town for groceries.
- The village is noisy and crowded, making it difficult to relax.
- Emma prefers living in a tight-knit community and being close to nature.
- Mark would like to stay in the village for a long time, instead of living in the city.

READING

1 Read the text. Discover how life in London reflects its cultural diversity and how the city balances modern living with old traditions.

London is a busy and exciting city where people from all over the world come to live and work. The way people live in London can be very different depending on where they live, what they do and their cultural background.

Most people in London live in apartments or houses. Many choose to live in central areas to be close to work or the city's attractions, but these areas can be expensive. Because of this, some people prefer to live in the outer parts of London, where housing is more affordable. The city has a great public transport system, such as the London Underground (the Tube), buses and trains, which makes it easy to travel around.

London is a multicultural city. The food, languages and festivals reflect the diversity of people living here from many different countries. In neighbourhoods like Camden, Soho and Brick Lane, you can experience different traditions and hear many languages spoken.

Life in London can be fast-paced, especially for people who work in big industries such as finance, technology or media. Many people work long hours, but in their free time they enjoy exploring the city. They might visit a park, go to a museum or watch a play in the West End.

There are many things to do in London. The city has many restaurants, cafés, shops and places for entertainment. Whether you are enjoying street food or relaxing with a coffee in a café, London offers something for everyone. There are also many parks and green spaces, such as Hyde Park and Regent's Park, where people can have a rest in nature.

Even though London is busy and sometimes crowded, it's a city where you can experience both modern life and old traditions. People appreciate its diversity, creativity and history and there's always something new to discover.

2 Read the text. Answer the following questions:

- Where do most people in London live?
- Why do some people choose to live in the outer parts of London?
- What makes London's public transport system convenient for its residents?
- What are the things people do in their free time in London?
- What are the green spaces in London where people can relax?
- What makes London a busy and exciting city?
- How does life in London compare to living in a quieter city or town?
- What sectors do people in London work in?

3 Read the statements. Decide whether they are true or false.

- People in London mostly live in houses in the central areas.
- Living in the central areas of London is usually very cheap.
- London has a well-developed public transport system.
- Camden, Soho and Brick Lane are neighborhoods where you can see many different cultures.
- Most people in London work short hours and have lots of free time.
- There are many parks in London, like Hyde Park and Regent's Park, where people can relax.
- London is a quiet city with no crowds.
- London is known for its mix of modern life and old traditions.

4 Match the words in the Vocabulary Corner box with their definitions.

Write sentences using them.

- places or events that draw visitors because they are interesting or enjoyable;
- neighborhoods or areas that are located on the outskirts, farther from the city center;
- the speed at which something happens or is done;
- having many different cultures or ethnic groups living together;
- travelling around to discover new places or learn about something;
- the state of having many different types of people, cultures or ideas.

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. For each type of transportation in the box, provide a description. Answer the following questions using complete sentences.

- What is it?
- What does it look like? How does it operate?
- Who commonly uses it?
- What are its advantages and disadvantages?
- Is it more popular in certain cities or areas?
- How is it different from other types of transportation?

2 Imagine you have to switch your current lifestyle (e.g., from a city dweller moving to the countryside or vice versa). Share your thoughts about the following:

- What are the most significant adjustments you need to make?
- What would you miss about your old life?
- What new experiences would you look forward to?

3 Analyse the concept of a smart city and discuss how technology can improve daily life in your own city/town/village. In groups, brainstorm ways technology could be used to improve daily life in your area. Each group selects two features from the chart and answers these questions:

- What problem does this feature solve in a city/town/village?
- How can it improve the daily lives of citizens?
- What technologies are required to implement it?
- Which feature would be the easiest to implement in your area?
- Which would be the most challenging? Why?

LISTENING

1 You are going to listen to Sam, who had an unpredictable travel experience. How did the people in the story feel when the pilot announced the fire? Why?

2 Listen again. Identify if the statements are true or false.

- Sam was flying from London to New York.
- The flight had problems right after take-off.
- Sam was watching a travel documentary before the pilot's announcement.
- The pilot announced that there was smoke in the cockpit.
- Passengers remained completely calm throughout the emergency.
- Flight attendants showed passengers how to use the oxygen masks.
- The plane made an emergency landing safely at an airstrip.
- The fire in the cargo hold was very large and caused major damage.
- Sam felt it was important to stay calm during the situation.
- After the flight, Sam decided he would never fly again.

3 Pretend you were on the same flight as Sam. Think about how you would feel and react to the announcement about the smoke and the emergency landing. In groups, discuss the following questions:

- How would you feel if you were in this situation?
- What would you do to stay calm?
- How do you think the flight crew handled the situation?

READING

1 Do you think school field trips are necessary? Why or why not? Justify your answer.

2 Look at the types of tourist activities listed in Column A and the explanations provided in Column B. Match them.

A	B
1. stroll	A. To go and see a place or an attraction, often for a short period.
2. visit	B. A short trip or journey taken for leisure or exploration, often with a planned route or destination.
3. hiking	C. A walk through an area, usually at a relaxed pace, to enjoy the surroundings or learn more about a location.
4. excursion	A long walk, usually in nature, requiring physical effort and sometimes involving climbing or trekking.

3 Read the text. Why are school trips and camps considered important for students?

School trips and camps play a crucial role in the education and the development of school children. These extracurricular activities provide unique opportunities for students to learn outside the classroom, develop social skills and create valuable memories. That is why it is important for schools to organise trips and camps regularly to round out and complement students' educational experiences.

One of the main benefits of school trips is that they give students the opportunity to learn through hands-on experience. While in the classroom, students can learn about different topics from books and presentations; field trips expose them to real situations and real places, allowing them to deepen their understanding and develop their practical skills. For example, a trip to a farm can help children better understand the food production process and see how animals are cared for in real life.

School trips and camps also play an important role in developing children's social skills. During these activities, students have the opportunity to interact with their peers outside of the regular school environment. This helps them develop their communication, cooperation and teamwork skills, which are essential for their long-term success. Trips also give them the opportunity to make new friends and strengthen existing relationships with their peers, which is beneficial for their social and emotional development.

School trips and camps also have a positive impact on children's health and well-being. Participating in outdoor activities helps students improve their mood and reduce their stress and anxiety levels. Also, the physical activities they do during the trips help them maintain good health and improve their physical fitness. Thus, school trips and camps contribute to the promotion of a healthy and balanced lifestyle among children.

School trips and camps give children the opportunity to develop their autonomy and independence. Participating in these activities encourages students to take responsibility for their own actions and manage their time and resources effectively. These activities also give them the opportunity to step out of their comfort zones and test their limits, which helps them discover and exploit their full potential.

School trips and camps provide students with unique opportunities for learning and grow personally.

2 Work in groups.

A. Discuss and share memories of field trips you've had with your classmates or schoolmates. Answer the following questions:

- Which field trip did you enjoy the most and would like to repeat? Why?
- What made this trip special or memorable for you? Was it the people you were with, the place you visited or the atmosphere?
- How did the trip impact your learning or personal growth?

B. Present your group answers to the class.

3 Work in pairs. Discuss the key stages involved in organising and conducting a successful field trip or holiday. Explain why each stage is important for ensuring a smooth and enjoyable experience.

Planning a School Trip

- ✓ Identify your trip purpose.
- ✓ Determine the budget.
- ✓ Develop a detailed itinerary.
- ✓ Conduct a risk assessment.
- ✓ Arrange transport and accommodation.
- ✓ Speak to parents.
- ✓ Gather necessary permissions and paperwork.

Risks

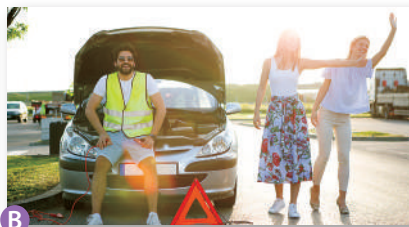

Physical danger, environmental hazards, lack of experience, poor decision-making.

Unpredictability

Weather conditions, changes in environment, unexpected accidents or sudden challenges.

4 Look at the pictures. Discuss them. Use the prompts in the box and the questions below.

- What do all the pictures have in common?
- What might happen to the people in these situations?
- Why do you think these situations could be dangerous or unpredictable?

Verbs followed by adverb particles

Some verbs are followed by adverb particles. Examples: put on, take off, give away, bring up, call in etc. The following words are used only as particles and never as prepositions: away, back, out, backward, forward, upward, downward.

e.g. Andrew was brought up by his father.

Sometimes the verb and adverb particle can be split by an object (usually a noun or pronoun).

For example: Turn off

She turned off the light. She turned it off.

Turn off can be separated by the object (the light or it).

When using pronouns, it's necessary to place the pronoun between the verb and the adverb particle:

e.g. He must send them back.

When the object is long, needs to be emphasized, or is qualified by an adjectival phrase or clause, the particle is placed before the object.

e.g. The sailors put out the fire in the hold of the ship.

1 Complete the following sentences using appropriate adverb particles.

- The lady put her hat ...
- He threw the ticket ...
- When you get a letter you must send the answer ...
- The principal of our school gave ... the prizes.
- He put ... an air of innocence.
- He brushed ... all the travel plans I had carefully formulated before.

2 Complete the sentences using the correct phrasal verb from the list. Change the form of the verb if necessary.

turn off, get along with, break down, look after, pick up, give up, take over, run out of

- I couldn't ... the noise any longer, so I turned on some music.
- We've been friends for years; I really ... her.
- The car suddenly ... in the middle of the highway.
- Can you ... my dog while I'm on vacation?
- I had to ... the phone because my battery died.
- After hours of trying, I decided to ... solving the puzzle.
- He is going to ... his father's business when he retires.
- We need to buy more bread; we've ... it.

3 Rewrite the sentences using the phrasal verb in brackets.

Example: I had to stop working on the project because it was too difficult. (give up) →
I gave up working on the project because it was too difficult.

- I rejected their offer to join the team. (turn down)
- She found some information online about the new restaurant. (look up)
- The meeting started to improve after the new manager took over. (take off)
- He finally agreed to let me borrow his car. (give in)
- We encountered an old friend at the supermarket yesterday. (run into)

You get the key and ask the receptionist:

- to give you a wake-up call at 7 a.m.;
- to bring breakfast in the room;
- to call a taxi for you

Receptionist

You greet the traveller. Ask him if he/she has reserved a room. You have several different rooms:

- a single room; - a double room; - a suite.

Ask the traveller:

- how many nights he/she would like to stay;
- how he/she would pay;
- if he/she needs any services.

Give him/her the key.

READING

1 Read the text. Think of a suitable title for each paragraph that summarises its main idea. Explain your choice. List the tips you found the most useful in the text. How could you apply these tips in your own life or experiences?

On vacation, we all want to settle into a comfortable and tidy room, relax and fully immerse ourselves in carefree fun. The chance of carrying out such a plan largely depends on the conditions and services available at the hotel where we choose to stay. Here are some recommendations on how to choose the right hotel.

A. ...

If you decide to spend your vacation at the sea, then choose a hotel on the first line. The walk to the beach and sun loungers will be short. However, accommodation in such a hotel is more expensive than in buildings further from the sea. But not everything is as sad as it might seem at first glance. Hotels on the second, third and subsequent lines often offer a shuttle service to the beach and back to compensate for the less convenient location.

When visiting a country that is not popular for sightseeing and excursions, try to find a location away from the centre and tourist routes. But make sure that the transportation links in the area are convenient.

B. ...

When choosing the right hotel it's important to consider the number of stars. Hotels in the highest category offer spacious rooms, excellent service quality, a variety of food options, as well as entertainment and evening shows, ensuring that you never get bored. These hotels have the capability to incorporate their own water parks, tennis courts, spas and fitness centers.

When selecting a hotel, it's important to consider your companions' interests and wishes.

For parents with children, a hotel is suitable where there is a children's menu, babysitting and entertainers, a mini-aquapark and playgrounds.

Romantic couples should opt for complexes with spa centers, swimming pools, restaurants and water entertainment.

Young people will like places with bars and discos, active sports and water activities.

C. ...

The time of arrival and departure from the hotel frequently differs from the time of arrival or departure of the flight; this aspect should be considered. Standard hotel check-in times are 2:00 p.m. and check-outs are from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. If you need to check out later, you usually have to pay extra. Many hotels are ready to do early check-in free of charge unless you are in high season and there are enough free rooms.

- h. The hotel has a ... with swings, slides and a sandbox, perfect for young children to enjoy.

4 Read the following statements. Decide if they are true or false. Correct the false ones.

- a. The standard hotel check-in time is usually 12:00 p.m.
- b. Hotels on the first line are always cheaper than those located further away from the beach.
- c. A shuttle service is sometimes provided by hotels on the second or third lines to help guests reach the beach.
- d. Hotels with higher ratings typically offer fewer amenities and lower service quality.
- e. A hotel suitable for parents with children should have features like a children's menu, playgrounds and entertainment for kids.
- f. A romantic couple would prefer a hotel with active sports, bars and water activities.
- g. Check-out times at most hotels are typically between 10:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m.
- h. Hotels never charge extra for late check-out, no matter the situation.

SPEAKING

1 Work in pairs. Discuss the questions below. Report the findings to the class.

- a. Have you ever had a bad experience at a hotel? What happened?
- b. What are the advantages and disadvantages of staying in a hotel versus renting a vacation home or apartment?
- c. How can hotels improve the experience for their guests?
- d. How do you think hotels will evolve in the next 20 years?
- e. What kind of technology do you think will become common in hotels in the future?

- 2 As a group, identify three positive and three negative aspects about hotels. Use your personal experiences or general knowledge of the hotel industry. For each point you mention, provide examples or reasons to justify your opinion. Share your thoughts with your classmates.

- 3 In pairs, pretend that you are hotel marketers. Create a short advertisement for a new hotel, focusing on its best features. Your advertisement should include a catchy slogan and reasons why people should stay at your hotel. Make it appealing to different types of travellers (business people, tourists, families, etc.). Present your advertisement to the class.

GRAMMAR

- 1 Match the clauses in Column A with their corresponding time adverbials in Column B.

Column A

1. I always drink coffee
2. She waited for the bus
3. I listened to music
4. We stayed indoors
5. I'll ship the product

Column B

- A. until the rain stopped.
- B. while I was eating lunch.
- C. as soon as I receive payment.
- D. after finishing her work.
- E. when I wake up.

- 2 Choose the correct time adverbial to complete each sentence:

- a. I will go to bed (after/before) I finish my homework.
- b. She goes jogging (yesterday/every morning).
- c. We'll stay at the café (till/in case) the rain stops.
- d. (While/As soon as) I was cooking, the phone rang.
- e. Take your phone with you (when/in case) you get lost.

- 3 Fill in the blanks with the correct time adverbials.

"... I woke up this morning, I decided to go for a run. I ran for two hours ... taking a break. ... I got home, I made myself a cup of tea. ... I was drinking it, I remembered that I had an appointment later in the day. I decided to rest ... it was time to leave."

A time adverbial is a word, phrase or clause that provides information about when, how long, how often, or in what sequence an action or event occurs.

Examples:

- ✓ As soon as the concert ended, people started leaving. (sequence)
- ✓ After school, I like to play with my friends. (time)
- ✓ I ate dinner before watching a film.
- ✓ She waited until the lights came back on. (duration)

WRITING

- 1 Read the beginning of the story "A Stay at the Hotel". In about 150 words, continue it. When writing the story, consider the following:

- ✓ Use adverbs and adverbial phrases of time (e.g., when, while, after, before, as soon as).
- ✓ Organise your ideas into clear paragraphs: introduction, body (experience/activities) and conclusion.
- ✓ Be descriptive! Paint a picture of your experience!

"Last summer, I stayed at a beautiful seaside hotel in Greece with my family. The hotel was located right on the beach and our room had a balcony with a breathtaking view of the sea..."

 - b. Which category of media do you trust the most? Why? Share a specific example of how this type of media has been useful or reliable for you.

READING

- 1 Read the text and find out what "brain pollution" means.

Brain Pollution

In order to fight the climate crisis, we must drastically reduce our consumption. However, daily messages often urge us to increase our consumption. We all know about air pollution, but advertising also contributes to a form of "brain pollution" that encourages us to consume more and more. This problem is getting worse day by day.

Advertising influences us without our awareness. Many studies show that people start to believe the materialistic ideas that ads promote. Because of this, they feel worse, have more problems in relationships, show fewer positive behaviours and have worse results in school and work. Also, the more people focus on material things, the less they care about the environment and the more they do things that harm it.

According to some early research, “It may sound scary, but if an ad doesn’t change the way people think, it has not worked.” This is not well-known by many people. When we see the same brands and logos repeatedly, we begin to remember them more and more. This happens because our brains create new paths that are strengthened by seeing the brand again. Other research shows that ads can change the way people act, making them less honest or creative. Today, tools are available to study how ads and logos affect us, leading to a field called “neuromarketing.”

Advertising promotes excessive consumption, negatively impacting both the climate and the environment. This is especially bad when ads promote products that pollute a lot, like fossil fuels, airplanes and cars that use gasoline. It’s like the old times when tobacco ads were allowed. In 2018, the car industry spent about $35.5 billion on ads, which is almost the same amount of money that Bolivia earns in one year.

To stop “brain pollution” we need to take actions like banning tobacco ads. We must think about the problems people have with climate change, air pollution, mental health and unwanted ads in public spaces in order to create new rules and protect everyone.

2 Match the definitions with the words in the Vocabulary Corner box. Write sentences using them.

- An investigation or research conducted to learn more about something.
- A type of fuel used in cars and other vehicles, made from oil.
- To strongly advise or try to persuade someone to do a particular thing.
- A field of marketing that studies how people’s brains respond to advertising and brands, using scientific techniques to understand and influence consumer behaviour.
- To officially stop or prohibit something from happening or being used.
- A design or symbol used by a company or organization to represent its brand or identity.

3 Read the statements below. Decide if they are true or false.

Correct the false ones.

- “Brain pollution” is produced by advertising that fuels overconsumption.
- People start to have a better attitude toward the environment than to value materialistic ideals and objectives.
- The automobile industry spent less than $35.5 billion in 2018 on advertising in major international markets.
- Banning tobacco ads was one of the first actions to fight “brain pollution.”
- Ads only influence people’s behaviour in a positive way.

4 Read the questions and provide short answers.

- Why is advertising considered harmful to the environment?
- How does neuromarketing influence consumer behaviour?
- What are the negative effects of materialistic ideals promoted by advertising?
- How much did the automobile industry spend on advertising in 2018?

5 Write the important ideas from the text in the order they appear. Use the options below and arrange them in the correct sequence.

- Advertising encourages overconsumption, which affects the climate and the environment.
- “Brain pollution” fosters excessive consumption if left unchecked.
- Advertising exhibits negative consequences in academic and professional lives.

- 6 Comment the idea of Dr. Chris Van Tulleken about advertising and its impact on human's brain. Do you agree or disagree with it? Why?

"The brain pollution of advertising is one of the least talked about and understood aspects of the climate and public health crises. We need to end the badvertising that undermines climate action for both our health and our ultimate survival."

Reflexive Pronouns

Reflexive pronouns are used when the subject and the object of a sentence refer to the same person or thing. They are formed by adding “-self” (singular) or “-selves” (plural) to the pronouns.

Singular:

I → myself
You → yourself
He/She/It → himself/herself/itself

Plural:

We → ourselves
You → yourselves
They → themselves

Uses:

1. When the subject and the object are the same person or thing:

e.g. I cut myself while cooking. She enjoyed herself at the party.

2. To show that an action is done to the subject:

e.g. He hurt himself while playing football. We taught ourselves how to use the software.

1 Fill in the blanks with the correct reflexive pronoun.

- Many people rely on the Internet to inform ... about the latest news.
- I saw an advertisement on TV and decided to buy the product ...
- She enjoyed watching the movie ..., without any interruptions.
- The celebrity posted a photo of ... on Instagram.
- We need to educate ... about the dangers of misinformation online.
- The radio host asked the listeners to share their thoughts and opinions ...

2 Correct the mistakes in the sentences.

- The media company presented themselves as a leader in digital innovation.
- She watched the news about the pandemic by himself.
- The reporter introduced herself as the host of the program.
- I listened to the podcast and learned a lot by yourself.

WRITING

1 Design an advertisement.

- Choose a product you would like to advertise. It could be anything, from a gadget, clothing, food or even a service.
- Write a short text, highlighting its benefits.
- Think of a memorable slogan that fits your product.
- Create a poster.
- Present it to the class.

Tips for designing an advertisement

- ✓ Know your target audience.
- ✓ Keep it clear and simple: clear message, easy-to-read visuals.
- ✓ Use bold and catchy elements: your slogan, image and product description should work together to grab attention.
- ✓ Rhyme or wordplay: use rhymes, alliteration or clever word choices to make your slogan stick in people's minds.
- ✓ Include a Call to Action: tell the viewers exactly what you want them to do next, such as “Buy Now,” “Visit Our Website” or “Order Today.”
- ✓ Focus on the benefits, not features.

 - i. How careful are you about sharing personal information on social media? Do you think it's important to protect your privacy online? Why?

READING

- 1 Read the text. How does social media impact teenagers?

Social Media and Teenagers

Social media has a significant influence on teenagers, shaping their behaviours, relationships and mental health in both positive and negative ways. These platforms provide opportunities for creativity, learning and social connection, but they also bring challenges such as unrealistic expectations, social pressure and mental health concerns.

Facebook allows teens to stay connected with friends and communities, making it a space for sharing personal updates. However, it can also create pressure to present an idealised version of their lives, which may affect self-esteem as teens compare their experiences to others.

Twitter, known for its microblogging format, keeps teens updated with real-time news. While it fosters engagement, the fast-paced nature of the platform, combined with character limits, can lead to misunderstandings and negativity.

Instagram, primarily focused on visual content, fosters creativity while simultaneously imposing pressure on appearance. Many teenagers struggle with body image anxiety and the need for social validation, making Instagram both a creative outlet and a source of stress.

LinkedIn, although less popular among teens, offers insight into networking and career planning. However, its emphasis on professionalism can contribute to pressure to appear overly polished, potentially making teens feel disconnected from their authentic selves.

TikTok, known for its viral trends and short videos, provides a space for creative expression but can also create unrealistic expectations. Teens may find themselves seeking viral fame and external approval and the addictive nature of the platform can lead to unhealthy comparisons and diminished self-worth.

YouTube is crucial for teens, offering both entertainment and educational content. Many teens also create their own videos. However, the platform's algorithm can encourage endless scrolling, which can result in wasted time and exposure to harmful content.

Given these challenges, teenagers must learn how to manage their social media use wisely, balancing creativity and connection with responsible engagement. It is also essential for them to seek support if they feel overwhelmed by the pressures these platforms can create.

2 Answer the questions.

- What do you consider the biggest benefit of social media for teenagers?
- What do you think is the most significant challenge that teenagers face when using social media?
- How do you think Facebook influences the way teenagers present themselves online? Do you think this is positive or negative?
- How does Twitter impact the way teenagers communicate and engage with information?
- Instagram is known for its visual content. How do you think this affects teenagers' self-image and self-esteem?
- Why is LinkedIn less popular among teens? What pressure does it create?
- How does TikTok's addictive nature affect teenagers' mental health?

3 Match the definitions below with their words and word combinations in the Vocabulary Corner box. Write sentences using them.

- A feeling of worry or anxiety about something, often related to potential risks or negative outcomes.
- Represented or perceived as perfect or better than reality, often ignoring flaws or imperfections.
- The practice of posting short, concise updates, typically on social media platforms, to share thoughts or information quickly.
- The sense of approval or acceptance from others, often gained through likes, comments or shares on social media.
- A deep understanding or accurate perception of a situation, concept or idea.
- The state of being in contact with or affected by something.

1 Read carefully the provided social media post about cockroach milk as a potential superfood.

#FutureFood #Superfoods #InnovativeScience

 Scientists say cockroach milk might be the next superfood! It sounds surprising, but this insect milk could soon be a new alternative to cow's milk, appearing on supermarket shelves. While some might find the idea strange, researchers have found that the milk from the Pacific Beetle cockroach is packed with nutrients—more than cow's milk! One scientist noted that "a small crystal of cockroach milk has over three times the energy of the same amount of cow's milk."  It's also rich in amino acids and proteins, which are essential for our health. Could this be the future of dairy?  What do you think? Would you try cockroach milk?  Let us know in the comments!

2 Answer the questions based on the information in the post.

- Would you ever try cockroach milk (after reading this post) if it's proven to be super nutritious? Why yes? Why not?
- Do you think insect-based foods could be the future of healthy eating? Explain your perspective.
- If cockroach milk has three times more energy than cow's milk, how do you think it could change our diets or the way we consume dairy?
- How trustworthy do you think this post is?
- What factors make a social media post about scientific claims credible or unreliable?

3 In groups, reflect on social media information. Discuss the questions below.

Share your thoughts with other classmates.

- Are social media posts safe and secure sources of information? Why yes? Why not?
- What steps should people take to verify the information shared in various posts?
- What are the possible risks of accepting social media claims, particularly when they involve health or science topics?

5 Tell a short story (real or fictional) about a time you or someone you know faced a security issue on social media. As a class, discuss what could have been done differently to avoid the problem.

6 In groups, talk about your favorite content creator and explain why they inspire you. The questions below will guide your discussion. Share your thoughts with the class.

- Who is your favourite content creator? What kind of content does he or she create?
- What do you most enjoy about the way your favourite creators share their content?
- How has your favourite content creator influenced your interests or hobbies?
- Do they use social media in a way that inspires you to do something new or different?
- What distinguishes this content creator from others?
- How does their content make you feel? Does it motivate you, entertain you or teach you something?
- Can you relate to your favourite content creator's journey or experiences?
- Have you ever learned anything important from their videos or posts? What was it?
- Do you think social media influencers can have a positive or negative impact on their audience? Why?

The Direct Object expressed by a reflexive pronoun

A reflexive pronoun refers back to the subject of the sentence and is used when the subject and the object of the action are the same.

Examples of Reflexive Pronouns: myself, yourself, himself, herself, itself, ourselves, yourselves, themselves.

Sentence	Subject	Verb	Direct Object-reflexive pronoun	Explanation
She hurt herself.	She	hurt	herself	herself is the direct object, reflecting the action back to the subject.
I see myself in the mirror.	I	see	myself	myself is the direct object, and the action (seeing) reflects back to "I".
He blamed himself for the mistake.	He	blamed	himself	himself is the direct object, reflecting the action of blaming back onto "He".
We enjoyed ourselves at the park.	We	enjoyed	ourselves	ourselves is the direct object, reflecting the enjoyment back to "We".

- Complete the sentences using the correct reflexive pronoun.
 - Helen looked at ... in the mirror.
 - My father and mother prepared ... for the meeting.
 - He enjoyed ... at the party.
 - My brother hurt ... while playing football.
 - We can do it ... without any help.
- Read the sentences below. Circle the reflexive pronouns that are used as direct objects.
 - She washed herself after the workout.
 - He made himself a sandwich for lunch.
 - I taught myself how to play the guitar.

READING COMPREHENSION

1 Read the text and accomplish the tasks that follow.

Sleeping with the Fish

When I arrived at the undersea retreat, it felt like stepping into another world, one submerged beneath the waves, where every wall became a window to the underwater world. This marvel of modern engineering and design promised an experience like no other.

From the moment I descended into the depths, I found myself surrounded by vibrant marine life and the serene beauty of the ocean. My suite was breathtaking. The floor-to-ceiling windows offered panoramic views of coral reefs, playful dolphins and majestic sea turtles. The interior was a perfect blend of comfort and elegance with eco-friendly materials that harmonised beautifully with the natural environment. I sank into the plush king-sized bed, stepped out onto my private underwater balcony and relaxed in the luxurious bathroom with its rain shower, all while feeling completely immersed in the underwater world.

The retreat offered so many unique facilities. The Marine Observatory Lounge was a peaceful haven where I could watch the aquatic life drift by in a tranquil setting. The Gourmet Dining restaurant served the freshest, most delicious sustainable seafood I've ever tasted. One evening, I treated myself to the Underwater Spa, where I felt all my stress melt away as I enjoyed a massage surrounded by the soothing views of the ocean. For adventure, I went diving and snorkelling, discovering beautiful coral reefs and getting up close with fascinating marine creatures.

What impressed me even more was the hotel's concern for sustainability. The retreat was powered by sustainable energy sources such as solar panels and underwater turbines, which helped to reduce its environmental impact. Advanced water recycling systems and marine conservation initiatives were easily integrated into its operations. I learnt from the staff about their collaboration with marine biologists to protect nearby coral reefs, support local communities through eco-tourism projects and offer educational programs about ocean conservation. It was inspiring to see how luxury and environmental respect could coexist so beautifully.

My stay at the undersea retreat wasn't just a vacation—it was a transformative experience. I left with a renewed sense of wonder for the ocean and gratitude for this incredible place that allowed me to live among its magic.

2 Answer the questions.

- What was the first impression the author had upon arriving at the undersea retreat?
- What could be seen through the windows of the suite?
- What facilities did the narrator enjoy?
- What type of energy sources powered the undersea retreat?
- What was the purpose of the retreat's collaboration with marine biologists?

4 Circle the correct word.

- What does the word "transformative" suggest about the author's experience?
A. purifying
B. life-changing
C. enhanced

3 Based on the text, decide if the statements below are true or false.

- The retreat had a private underwater balcony in each suite.
- The retreat's restaurant served seafood sourced from nearby coral reefs.
- The Underwater Spa offered massages with views of the ocean.
- The retreat was entirely powered by underwater turbines.

- What does the word "drift" suggest?
A. movement
B. wander
C. stream

5 Match the beginning of each sentence in Column A with the correct ending in Column B. One is extra.

Column A

1. When I arrived at the undersea retreat ...
2. The floor-to-ceiling windows ...
3. I treated myself to the Underwater Spa ...
4. The interior was a perfect blend of comfort and elegance ...
5. The Marine Observatory Lounge ...
6. The retreat was powered by ...

Column B

- A. where I felt all my stress melt away.
- B. was a peaceful haven.
- C. helped protect nearby coral reefs.
- D. sustainable energy sources.
- E. it felt like stepping into another world.
- F. with eco-friendly materials.

WRITING

1 Do you think adventure is an important part of life? Why or why not? In about 150-180 words, express your point of view. Provide reasons and examples to support your answer. Consider the following:

- ✓ Define what adventure means to you.
- ✓ State your opinion on whether adventure is important in life.
- ✓ Explore why some people might not see adventure as necessary.

Bringing Ideas to Life

Advertisement

Design a creative and compelling advertisement that promotes a specific product.

- 1. Choose Your Product. It can be anything from a consumer good to a service or experience.
- 2. Identify your target audience and tailor your advertisement to their needs and preferences.
Focus on the most important aspects of the product, such as:
 - ✓ Product benefits (e.g., saves time, enhances performance, improves health)
 - ✓ Unique features (e.g., eco-friendly, innovative design, multifunctional)
 - ✓ How it solves a problem or fulfills a need for the consumer
 - ✓ Special offers or promotions (e.g., discounts, limited-time offer)
- 3. Include the following elements:
 - ✓ Headline: A catchy and attention-grabbing title or slogan.
 - ✓ Product Image: A high-quality, appealing image of the product (or a video showcasing it in use).
 - ✓ Key Benefits: A short and clear description of why the product is valuable and what makes it stand out.
 - ✓ Call to Action: A strong and clear call to action (e.g., “Shop Now,” “Get Yours Today,” “Limited Time Offer”).
 - ✓ Branding: Ensure the product’s brand logo, tagline, or any relevant branding elements are included.
- 4. Decide on the ad format.

Criteria		Points
Content	The content is highly engaging, informative, and directly addresses the product’s key features, benefits and value to the target audience.	4
Clarity of Message	The message is crystal clear, effectively communicating the product’s value and compelling the viewer to take action.	4
Language	The language is persuasive, engaging and tailored to the target audience. It enhances the overall message and encourages action.	4
Visual Appeal	The advertisement is visually stunning, with exceptional use of colours, fonts and imagery that aligns with the product and appeals to the viewer’s emotions.	4
Layout and Design	The layout is clean, organised, and perfectly balanced. It effectively guides the viewer’s eye and ensures all elements are easy to digest.	4
Creativity in Visuals	The visuals are highly creative, innovative and directly showcase the product in an engaging, unique way.	4
Presentation	The advertisement is professional and well-executed. It demonstrates attention to detail and reflects a strong understanding of design principles.	4

“Make it simple. Make it memorable. Make it inviting to look at. Make it fun to read.”
